

Nearly 5,000 Marchers head up New York's Fifth Avenue Thursday evening in the Women's March for Equality walk. After a confrontation with police, the leaders of the parade, mostly women, got the authorities to allow the march to use two traffic lanes of the four-lane thoroughfare. Originally, the walk was planned for the sidewalk. The march ended at a rally on Central Park Mall.

Women's Lib To be Seeking Political Power

Reveal Goal During Marches, Rallies
Across Country

By The Associated Press

Trying to put more motion in their movement, women's liberation groups across the country have served notice that political power is their chief goal.

In marches and rallies, on banners and placards, in words conciliatory and fighting mad, women's liberationists marked the 51st anniversary of female suffrage Thursday with expressions of dissatisfaction at the pace of their progress toward equal rights.

While there was no shortage of vehemence, the day's major demonstration in New York drew an estimated 6,000 marchers. Last year, in the first big feminist street action in years, 20,000 paraded on Fifth Avenue.

Massing Numbers
Instead of massing large numbers of women this time, the liberation activists staged a series of small actions to spotlight their case.

A handful of women infiltrated the visitors' gallery of the American Stock Exchange with a banner reading "Women Power."

Floor traders looked up in surprise, breaking out in a crescendo of boos and a few cheers.

Shouting "De-sexagrate Wall Street" and "We can't bear any more bull," the demonstrators were ejected. A spokesman for the exchange said trading was not affected.

Other women picketed the New York Stock Exchange. In both cases, they contended that women were excluded from the top jobs in the financial fraternity.

To complete the Wall Street action, activists invaded two restaurants they said discriminated against women. Bathed in television lights, they de-

Vietnam Committee

Election Rigging Revealed

SAIGON (AP) — A watchdog committee of legislators today cited a number of incidents of election rigging by President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime.

Sen. Vu Van Mau, chairman of the election anti-fraud commission made up of 22 senators and deputies, cited the following examples of rigging and irregularities in connection with the lower house election Sunday and the voting Oct. 3 for the presidency:

—The Thieu ticket tried to monopolize or hoard the endorsements needed by other candidates to qualify for the ballot. Thieu was required to get only 40 signatures from national assemblymen or 100 from provincial and city councillors, but he wound up with endorsements from 87 deputies, 13 senators and 452 councilmen.

"It is as dishonest," Mau said, "as a merchant hoarding consumer goods."

—The Supreme Court could not explain its reasoning last week in invalidating some endorsements on Thieu's ticket and validating them on Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky's ticket when it had refused to do so only a few days before. Mau said the court "could not hide the fact" that Ky was reinstated because Gen. Duong Van Minh had quit the race, leaving Thieu unopposed.

—A major in the 5th Infantry Division "advised" his men to vote for Nguyen Ba Luong, the present speaker of the lower house. Following complaints by the committee, an army spokesman said he would "slap the face" of anyone who tried to advise him how to vote.

Men Told

Brig. Gen. Hoan Van Lac, commander of the Quang Trung Training Center, also told his men the army had no right to tell them how to vote. The committee recommended that the army suspend its political indoctrination courses until after the elections.

—In Kien Phong Province, the province chief's brother was forced to withdraw after a complaint by the committee that he was not a qualified candidate.

—In Binh Tuy Province, a candidate bribed the province chief to get government support.

—In Vinh Binh Province, a village councilman was re-elected because he supported an opposition candidate.

Five Candidates

—In Da Nang, five candidates were refused permission to talk on the radio. After intervention by the committee, they were allowed to go to the radio station but were told they could not broadcast because of a "technical failure."

—Also in Da Nang, a candidate was stoned when he appeared before a group of voters, and the stoning was organized by a captain from the army's political warfare section.

Ky meanwhile sent a communique to the Supreme Court of officials informing it of his decision on Aug. 23 not to participate in the election or to campaign, even though the court has put his name back on the ballot.

Japan Plans To Float Yen

Walk in Valley

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's new economic program won a major victory in the foreign exchange market today as administration officials continued attempts to woo labor support for its domestic policies.

The Japanese government announced it will let the yen float on the foreign exchange market beginning Saturday. The yen had been a major target of the import portion of Nixon's program.

The Japanese action is expected to improve the U.S. balance of trade and came a day after the Commerce Department announced a trade deficit in July for the fourth consecutive month.

The U.S. Treasury issued a brief statement saying: "We welcome the decision of Japan as a further step toward a more realistic realignment of international exchange rates which the President envisioned in his address to the nation."

Gold Standard

After Nixon announced Aug. 15 the suspension of the gold standard and the imposition of the 10 per cent import surcharge, the Japanese government attempted to hold the yen to a parity of 360 to the dollar.

It said today's action, allowing the yen to find its own rate according to the demand and supply, would be temporary.

Earlier, the administration, in a peace-making meeting with AFL-CIO President George Meany, guaranteed organized labor a role in determining what will follow the domestic 90-day wage-price freeze.

"Mr. Meany's response was to give us a good hearing and showing great concern about many aspects of the problems the freeze was causing, and that he hoped we would recognize those problems," Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said after Thursday's session with Meany.

Asst. Labor Secretary W. J. Usery met briefly with federal secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland, apparently laying the groundwork for the Hodgson-Meany talk.

What is to follow the freeze has become a dominant question for economic planners. And the Meany-Hodgson meeting was significant because of the labor chief's heavy criticism of President Nixon's new economic program.

Usery said nothing has been

DALLAS (AP) — "It was 114 degrees at 2 a.m., and the wind was blowing about 30 miles an hour."

"It pushes you back. You're going forward and it pushes you back. Your mouth really gets dry."

Viki Pochciol, a slender 19-year-old blonde, was describing her recent hike of the 147-mile length of Death Valley in five days.

"Seven men have crossed it the way we went," she said Thursday. "I am the first woman to cross it, and that is more or less an official record."

Viki and her husband, Bill, a 28-year-old Dallas construction worker, left Shoshone, Calif., Aug. 17 and headed west towards the valley. Once into the valley they turned north towards Scotty's Castle, Calif., at the northern tip of the dry expanse.

Photographer Partner
They were accompanied by George Sevr, 24, a Dallas photographer. Sevr drove a jeep and trailer with supplies.

"He'd drive on about two or three miles ahead of us," said Viki, "and we'd stop at the jeep to get water and rest."

"We traveled at night and daytime, more or less in the evening, the majority of it in the evening," Viki recalls. "At first we'd go for 16 miles and sleep for four hours during the night."

"Towards the end we kept going all day. I wanted to get to the end. I just couldn't take the heat."

They covered the last 40 miles in one stretch, she said, starting out at 6 a.m. and arriving at Scotty's Castle at 9:35 p.m. Aug. 21.

Tremendously Tired
"I got tremendously tired because the wind was blowing in our faces," Viki said.

The Pochciols trained for the hike by running and walking as much as 30 miles a day for five months before the trip.

On their trip through the valley they carried a thermometer which hit a high of 125 degrees and a low of 90.

Describing their reasons for the trip as "a personal achievement," Viki said she lost 10 pounds, her husband nearly 15.

"At nighttime it's actually harder than daytime, because at daytime you can see where you're going," she said.

"At night all you can see is the flashlight and the stars. It's like you're down in a big hole and all around you all you can see is big peaks."

"It kind of puts you to sleep. I'd rather put up with the heat in the day, because you feel you are going somewhere."

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. flights into New York, Boston and Chicago.

In ensuing years the increasing range of airlines shrunk Shannon's importance as a fuel stop, even as Irish International Airlines nurtured a thriving business to the three U.S. cities—earning three times as much from the route as its U.S. competitors—Pan American Airways, Trans World Airlines and Seaboard World Airlines.

Yet for 25 years the Irish rebuffed U.S. requests to let U.S. airlines fly into Dublin, the capital. The Irish say they want to continue Shannon as their international airport as a way of promoting economic development in eastern Ireland.

Now U.S. negotiators are bargaining rigorously with Australians, seeking to boost American air traffic to that country. Meanwhile, Washington has pioneered a bid by Australia's air carrier, Qantas, to step up its service to the United States.

So Unhappy
The Belgians are so unhappy about a U.S. refusal to allow their airline, Sabena, to fly to U.S. points beyond New York that they have talked about canceling their air agreement with the United States.

A Belgian negotiating team is due here next month—but U.S. officials say they won't give in. A similar meeting with Venezuela negotiators is scheduled for October.

France, West Germany and Canada also want to fly more throughout the United States, but U.S. authorities say economic conditions at this time bar granting foreigners more routes to U.S. cities.

Officials say the U.S. attitude began stiffening about a year ago when it became apparent that U.S. international airlines were piling up large financial losses. Nixon's new economic policy announcement Aug. 15 poured hardening cement into the U.S. negotiating posture.

Soviets Spend More on Military Research

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon research chief says a billion research and development request for this year.

He said U.S. experts don't know what the Soviets are developing but listed "some indications" which were censored out of his closed-door testimony released today by the House defense appropriations subcommittee.

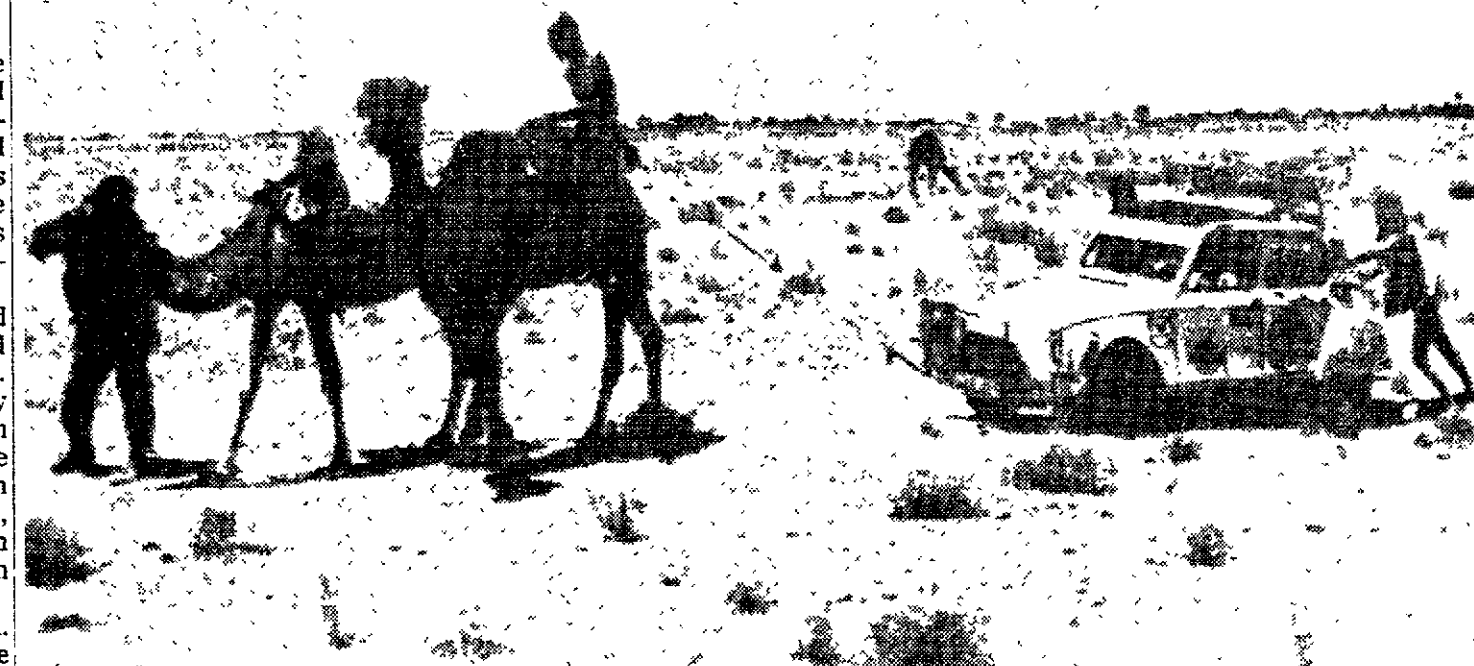

"This extra effort on their part will lead almost certainly to some very serious military surprises if this analysis is correct," Foster testified. This would be about 40 per cent above the Pentagon's $7.8-billion research and development request for this year. He said U.S. experts don't know what the Soviets are developing but listed "some indications" which were censored out of his closed-door testimony released today by the House defense appropriations subcommittee.

But he said there is no way of knowing whether the Soviets are developing major new weapons systems or simply backup and redundant systems for weapons they already have. Foster has cited a growing U.S.-Soviet technology gap before. The Federation of American Scientists has accused him of "a classical numbers game" at most, for a range of $2.4 billion to $3.6 billion. U.S. military research has leaped since 1963. Foster said, while the intelligence analysis indicates the total Soviet effort has not only continued to increase but has shifted from space to military technology.

In the latter half of this decade they will probably be estimate is more likely too low than too high. He did not say how the Pentagon got the $3-billion figure but said it could be off 20 per cent on the board.

Last Rounds of Golf, Shiny Homes Signal Coming Fall

Better Luck Next year to Mrs. Patrick Malloy who wound up her last day of league play on Reid Municipal Golf Course last Friday. (Post-Crescent Photo)

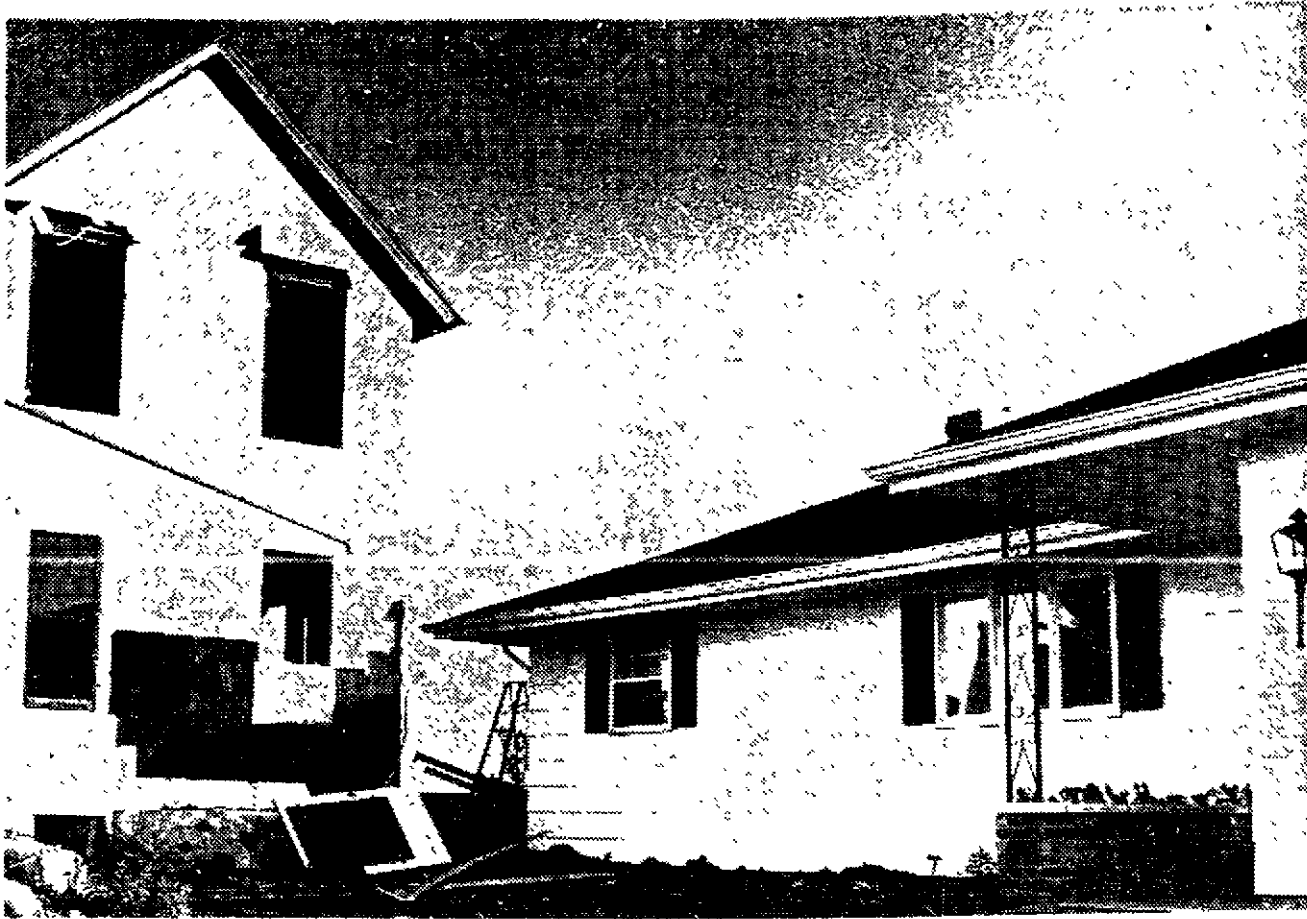

Last rounds of golf this week in almost all of the women's leagues in the Fox Valley area sent some gals home with trophies, others with booby prizes, but all with healthy tans, and a determination to do better this year.

Now comes back to school for mothers and housecleaning for all except for the neat-niks who have their annual cleaning on the monthly schedule that is becoming popular with housewives.

Some families solved their housecleaning by moving into new homes, but they are not to be envied, for they had the old to clean up and "sorting and deciding what to keep" problems.

One family did it the simple way by moving within a few feet and tearing the old home down behind them.

Newlyweds, of course, will go into new quarters where they will begin the lifetime of collecting their treasured items.

The Sad Old House with the raised eyebrow and the long nose, looked forlornly down at the new modern which became the attractive one story home of the Harold Kaphingsts on route 1. Moving was simple, about 10 feet from the door of one to the other.

New Disease Strikes Erma

BY ERMA BOMBECK

During the past few years I have felt myself giving in to a conversational disease known as the creeping trites and trivias.

I have had all the symptoms. First, I have not added a new word to my vocabulary since "Beatlemania."

Secondly, I resort to all the cliches that we have come to know and hate. "Is it cold enough for you? Long time, no see. (This to my husband) Hubba hubba. Fat and sassy. It's a dog's life. Easy come, easy go. It's only money. If you gotta go, you gotta go. You can't take it with you, and the early bird gets the worm."

But the most irritating change are my inane comments. For example, I will watch my husband slam his car door, stomp into the house, peck me on the cheek and without thinking I will exclaim with surprise, "Oh, are you home?"

Or I will stand outside the bathroom door listening to a dog bark and pant while the kids giggle and spray water and will yell through the keyhole, "Is the dog in there with you?"

Sometimes I could bite my tongue off. Like last week when I met a dear, old, former neighbor, Mrs. Rudabaggage. She and her husband used to run a small market around the corner from us. In the course of our conversation she said, "You know my husband died last year," and I gasped, "Did he really?"

From that inane remark, I went to a luncheon where I met an old schoolmate of mine. She waddled up to the table in maternity clothes and said to me, "You didn't know I was expecting in two weeks, did you?" And I said to her, "You're joking!"

"How?" she asked dryly.

"I don't know why I said that," I apologized. "It seems that lately I've been saying such stupid remarks. I have slipped into the old, tired routine of phrases that don't mean anything and cliches that should have a decent burial."

"Say," said my friend, "Why don't you take that new course this fall at the high school called Word Dynamics. They're registering."

"I haven't heard about it," I said.

"It's supposed to build your vocabulary, take away your redundancy, and make you a brilliant conversationalist."

Yesterday, I walked into the office of the instructor of "Word Dynamics." He was an engaging young man who looked up, smiled, and said, "Well, you're here, aren't you? How do. Sit down and take the load off your feet. It's a fact that my course will make you a brilliant conversationalist."

"Is that a fact?" I asked numbly signing the registration form.

Author Finds Time to Pen Her First Book at Age 40

BY PHIL THOMAS

NEWYORK (AP)—Vivacious Lolah Burford had an idea for a book when she was 18, but she didn't find time to put it down on paper until she was nearing 40.

Then, finding she still had time on her hands, she sat down and wrote another five books—all within a year's span.

"That's imagination," says the articulate Mrs. Burford. "Something sparks it off and the imagination works. Sometimes I'd work from 8 a.m. to 2 a.m. with just brief stops."

It took Mrs. Burford three years to find a publisher for her first book, "Vice Avenged: A Moral Tale." Mrs. Burford describes the novel as "an 18th century fairly tale, frankly unserious, frankly unrealistic, for a realistic, serious age."

The second novel, dealing with 7th century Ireland, has been sold and, says Mrs. Burford with a smile, "My agent has four other books. I have three in manuscript and I'm working on two more."

Mrs. Burford is the mother of three daughters, 14, 11, and 9—"all of them taller than me and all very beautiful, in my opinion." Her husband is poet William Burford. The family currently lives in Fort Worth, Tex., but it was while her husband was teaching at the University of Montana at Missoula from the spring of 1967 to mid-1968 that she wrote her first six books.

"Missoula is an enclosed place," she says. "There is little social life. I had time. Time I'd never had before. When you realize this, you use it."

"I'd go to the library and I noticed that a good many other people were doing the same thing. I was looking for books that would not leave me depressed, that would make me feel less bored, less lonely, less isolated. I thought the others were looking for the same thing, so I decided to give it to them."

"I thought we could do with a good story. Not one with an ax to grind or to reveal the author's hangups. I live life. I don't like to read it in fiction."

The idea for "Vice Avenged" occurred to Mrs. Burford when she was 18 and read about the betting clubs in 18th century England. "I invented this story way back then to amuse myself," she said. "I see nothing wrong with amusing myself and other people."

She wrote the book, as she does all her work, in long-hand, typed the manuscript herself, mailed it off to a publisher, and immediately began work on her second novel.

As to her writing, she says, "I either hear the story or I don't. I put myself at the service of the story and listen to the characters. The imagination sweeps in on you. I hear the characters, and, obviously, they want their story told, and I tell it. Writing is very complicated—a mixture of concentration and relaxation."

Mrs. Burford said she drew much of her inspiration from observing people and from reading. "I observe and I listen," she said. "And I read, and read, and read."

"I have this wild sense of humor and I have this imagination, and I thought I'd let it out and see if anyone wanted it."

"Some people sing. Some people play tennis. Me? I write."

Ambitious Master Plan Drafted for Plamann Park

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A summer zoo, an 18-hole golf course and a group camping area are included in preliminary master plans for the development of Plamann Park, submitted Thursday night to the Outagamie County Board's Public Property and Parks Committee.

The plans were drawn by Dega and Sluka Associates of Madison which was retained by the county early this year.

Hugh Dega, a partner in the Madison firm, said the county might want to consider projecting the proposed park development over the next five to 10 years.

The following features are

- contained in the preliminary development plans discussed Thursday:
- An 18-hole, 115-acre golf course along the west section of the 252-acre park. Two ponds, of 1½ and 3¼ acres, are included in the golf course drawing.
 - Summer Zoo
 - A summer zoo containing a wide range of animals, both native and otherwise. The zoo would be in the northeast section of the park, fronting on Broadway Drive. Dega told supervisors of a similar zoo recently opened in Madison.
 - A large, active sports area to include facilities for softball, baseball, tennis, basketball, soccer and football. The active sports area would be adjacent to the east edge of the golf course.
 - Several picnic areas which would include a two-acre pond.
 - A nature area that would form a belt through much of the center of the park. A park overlook would be situated near the nature area.
 - A swimming and skating area.
 - Facilities for group camping at the south central portion of the park. Dega said that if individual campsites are developed, the county could experience a problem of overuse by transients.
 - A winter sports area near the center of the park.
 - Several large parking areas and a maintenance-service section.

Dega told committeemen the first thing they should consider is changing the park traffic pattern to allow for a single entrance-exit area on Broadway Drive at the north end of the development. There now are several roads leading into the park.

Dega said there are portions of the park that do not get much visitor use because of the existing through-traffic pattern.

Dead-ending of the roads would result in increased use of some park areas, Dega explained.

Dega said that although his firm had not yet devised a timetable for development of the park just north of Appleton, supervisors should consider early construction of parking lots and a zoo and more year-around activities.

Low Priority

Although the golf course is a major element of the design, Dega remarked, it is not a high priority item for early development. He said the topography lends itself well to a golf course.

And, he continued, "there is considerable demand for golf courses now and in the future in this area," even though plans are being made for a large, privately developed course. "It is not unique for counties to be in the golf course business," Dega explained.

Charles Hervey, executive director of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission agreed that a golf course is needed, but he cautioned that it would involve "a tremendous expenditure" ($450,000 was mentioned) and at present no state or federal recreational funds being granted for golf course development in Wisconsin.

Dega suggested that consideration also be given to a natural amphitheater in the park. He also proposed a central shelter facility on a high spot in the middle of the park.

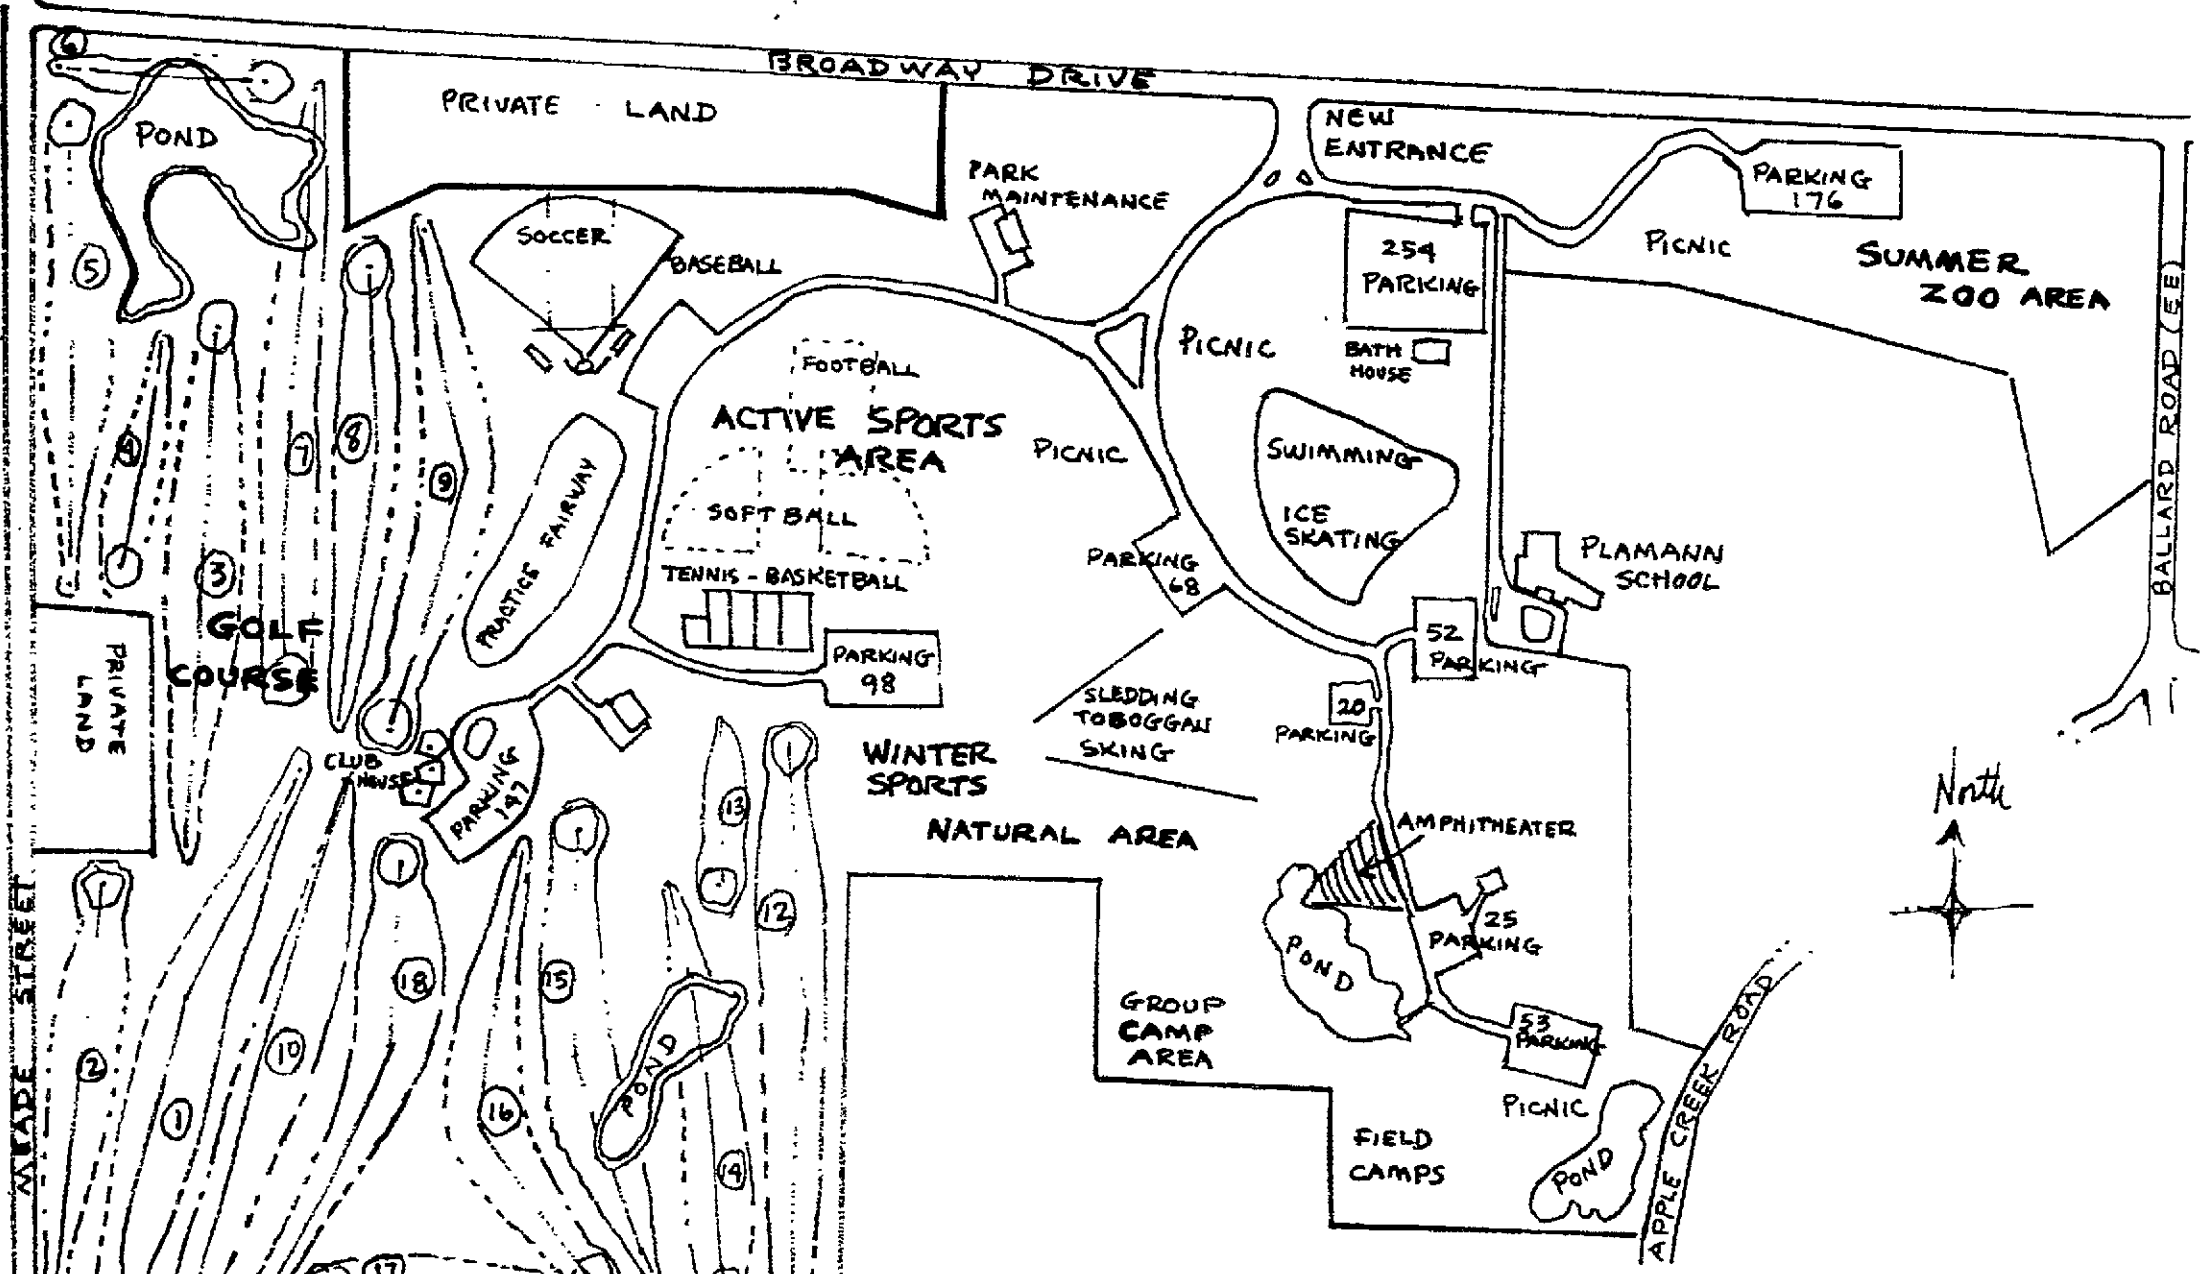

Definite Plans

County Executive Alvin E. Woehler urged the committee to get a definite master plan that would specify the number of years and the number of dollars needed for the development before requesting any county funds.

"I probably would throw it out under present economic situation," Woehler said, but he told committeemen that if they devised a thorough economic plan along with a set master plan, he would lend his assistance.

Supv. Nick Karras of Appleton, parks committee chairman, said the plans presented Thursday were "just for discussion." He believed that a public hearing would have to precede final action on a master plan.

The county recently more than doubled the size of Plamann Park with a 143-acre purchase of land, partially paid for with state and federal monies.

PLAMANN PARK • MASTER PLAN

This is the preliminary plan for development of Outagamie County's Plamann Park, presented Thursday night to the county board's parks and public properties committee by the planners, Dega & Sluka Associates, Madison. The plan includes an 18-hole, 115-acre golf course (left), a summer zoo (upper right) and a group camping area (lower center). According to the planners, development might take five to ten years. (Post-Crescent Map by Fred Schmidt)

Pro-City Bill On Annexing Is Approved

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The urban municipal interest of the state has won a surprisingly decisive victory in the ancient dispute about the rights of persons in annexation to the parent city for all purposes.

On a 79-15 roll call vote, the Wisconsin Assembly Thursday passed a senate-approved bill that would restrict the state Department of Natural Resources in ordering the extension of sewerage services beyond the limits of the city.

The measure which now goes to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey for his approval or approval would permit cities to call for annexation in such situations if they chose to do so, and nullify a service extension order of the state agency if annexation is refused by the non-urban district involved.

Towns Opposed

The towns lobby opposed the bill, as it opposes many of the major proposals of the larger cities on territorial annexation matters.

But legislators involved in the fight said that a latent antagonism toward DNR, exhibited on many other issues lately, was more important in delivering the victory to the League of Municipalities.

The issue of sewer service without annexation grew controversial recently with a "non-proliferation" policy of the state agency in approving construction of sewage disposal plants and in administering state and federal aids for construction of such facilities. The policy is intended to discourage numerous local plants at comparatively high cost, in favor of regional installations.

Amendment Lost

One of the surprising developments in the floor argument was the offering of a crippling amendment to the bill by Rep. Norman Anderson of Madison. Democratic majority leader, Anderson got only a handful of votes for his amendment. Normally he is one of the urban interests. Political sources said he was probably acting on behalf of DNR.

The most steadfast champions of rural government resisted the measure to the end.

"This is nothing but forced annexation," protested Rep. Ervin Conradt of Shiocton, one of the leaders of the rural town bloc spokesmen.

The League told legislators that virtually all of the cities and villages ordered to accept the sewage of adjacent town sanitary districts are vigorously opposing such demands, "because they are placed in a difficult position when they may later seek annexation of this territory for all purposes."

With sewage service extended, they could ignore proposals for annexation with impunity, the League explained.

'Drug Alert Day'

Disposal of Old Medicines Urged

A Drug Alert Day, aimed at getting dangerous or old drugs out of the hands of young children, has been announced by the Drug Council for Outagamie County in conjunction with the Winnebago County Mental Health Association.

The day will center around a disposal program of old or dangerous prescription drugs found on shelves in medicine cabinets. The program has the cooperation of every drug store in Outagamie and Winnebago counties and collection bins with volunteer helpers will be set up in the stores.

The collection will go on from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 25, in Outagamie County and from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on the same day in Winnebago County.

After the collections are stopped, the drugs will be taken, in supervised cars, to the Shokko parking lot on State 47 and from there, to an unknown place for disposal.

Dragon Float

During the day, a Dragon Float will tour each county to remind families to participate in the program. A poster contest also is going on in both counties for children to draw the best posters advertising the day. The winner will be a guest at an annual Mental Health dinner at the Ramada Inn.

Souvenir buttons will be given to all children participating in the program with their parents.

The button will say "I Fed the Dragon" in Outagamie County and "I Dropped" in Winnebago. Mrs. David Patterson, acting in behalf of Mrs. Carolyn Ray, Drug Council chairman who is hospitalized, said at a news conference today that the aim of the alert is to make every parent aware of the dangers in their medicine cabinets with the hopes that they will destroy or dispose of the drug.

Mrs. Patterson said that the "biggest pusher today is the medicine cabinet." And that, by having drugs where they can easily be found often leads to accidental or intentional misuse.

Because of the ever changing chemical nature of drugs, they may become lethal if taken after sitting for a year or so.

Mrs. Patterson said that because of the favorable attitude toward drugs in the country — that they are good things to be taken to get a good result — families will be urged to participate on a whole basis instead of only one person dropping the drugs off.

She said the council is hoping for families to discuss the why's and what's of drugs. She said that "children should be told why we are disposing of them, because they can be dangerous and why we are keeping them if they are needed."

She said that although indiscriminate use of drugs should be warned against, children also should be told about the good aspects of drugs. "The important thing in drug education is that you tell them about the use, the misuse and the abuse of drugs. But you've got to be careful not to make them (drugs) appear totally bad. There is a good side as well as a bad side to drugs."

Hopes For Future

Mrs. Patterson said that she didn't have a hope that any "street" drugs (those obtained illegally) would be turned in, but said she wished it could happen in the future. She said

Omro Youth Drowns in Gravel Pit

OMRO — A 15-year-old Omro youth drowned about 2 p.m. Thursday in a pool in a gravel pit near here.

The body of Michael Amundson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Amundson, 439 Madison St., was recovered at 4:45 p.m. The pit is located on County E and State 116 about one and a half miles southwest of the village.

Authorities said the Amundson boy had been swimming in the pit with a 12-year-old boy and three girls, ages 9, 10 and 12. According to reports, the two boys swam across the pool, a distance of about 150 feet. They rested briefly and were swimming back when Amundson began to call for help. The other boy told police that he tried to help Amundson, but that he would pull him under whenever he got near him.

Amundson then sank into the 20-foot-deep water. The boy and girls went to a phone in the pit area and called police.

A scuba diver searched the water for about 30 minutes, but said visibility was poor and the silt bottom would swirl up to obscure his vision.

Omro police, fire department, and county police then dragged the pit. The body, clad in black slacks, was recovered about 90 minutes later.

Officials said that the area is posted with "Danger" and "No Trespassing" signs.

The Amundson boy was living under foster care. He is the 10th drowning victim in Winnebago County this year

Plamann Bacteria Count Prompts County Panel Study

A study of the use of chemicals in the Plamann Park swimming lake was authorized Thursday night after the Outagamie County Board's public property and parks committee was told that the bacteria count in the lake is too high.

County Executive Alvin E. Woehler told the committee that although there "is nothing that alarming," water samples have revealed that the bacteria count "is very high."

There were times in July, he explained, that the count "exceeded recommended standards for swimming."

Woehler added, however, that bacteria counts have been high in many area waters this year. The parks committee ordered the water sampling earlier this month after receiving a report from the lake supervisor.

Inject Chemical

Woehler suggested that the committee consider studying a method of injecting some type of bacteria-killing chemical into the water supply at the man-made lake. The committee voted to seek such information. The parks committee also:

—Authorized Woehler to seek bids on major repairs on the courthouse annex roof where improper drainage has caused insulation to become saturated.

—Authorized the purchase of two small air conditioners, costing about $330, for the Huber Law office and the kitchen in the county jail. When the new jail is completed, the units can be used in other parts of the courthouse, Woehler said.

—Told Woehler to seek bids for repairs to the three entrance decks to the courthouse. Woehler said the concrete is cracking.

It's Never Too Cold

Lisa Dahlke was all bundled up Thursday night so she'd be warm while watching the Appleton Foxes game at Goodland Field. It was a chilly night, but since she was warm, ice cream seemed in order anyway. Lisa, from Westmont, Ill., is visiting the Lawrence Thomas family in Appleton. The Foxes won their game, the last regularly scheduled home appearance of the season, against Cedar Rapids. (Post-Crescent Photo by Robert V. Baeten)

Flood of EEA Job Applications Seen

The Appleton office of the Wisconsin State Employment Service (WSES) is bracing for a flood of Emergency Employment Act (EEA) job applicants.

"It will be a tremendous workload for us to process the additional applicants," Cyril Wolff, a WSES representative, said today at the first meeting of Outagamie County Executive Alvin E. Woehler's special seven-member committee charged with helping carry out provisions of the federally funded program.

The county has been designated as the local agent for distribution of $452,800 to be used as salaries for new public service jobs for unemployed and underemployed county residents. The jobs will be created in municipalities that will be selected by the new council on the basis of need.

Woehler told his committee the new employees added under the two-year federal program must be hired through WSES.

Hiring Priorities

Wolff, who said this means his office will receive "a huge influx of people not now registered," outlined the hiring priorities detailed in the federal flood of Emergency Employment Act (EEA) job applicants.

Korean and Vietnam military service veterans, dating back to Aug. 5, 1964, will get first nod for the public service positions.

Other veterans will get next preference, Wolff said, followed by welfare recipients and persons who have had federal manpower training. Applicants for EEA jobs are urged to bring their military discharge papers to the WSES office.

Persons drawing unemployment but who anticipate returning to work will not be eligible for the new EEA jobs, Woehler stated.

Fair Distribution

He told his council one of its most important tasks will be to help devise a fair and equitable distribution of employment funding to the municipalities in the county.

More than 2,000 persons are registered for employment at

Rescue Crew Will Tow Stranded Steam Crane

WRIGHTSTOWN — A big, steam-powered crane that a railroad museum the use of its week ago was sidetracked here on its way to the National Railroad Museum in Green Bay, will complete its trip Saturday — but not on its own.

A special operating crew started from Appleton last Sunday afternoon, intending to guide the crane to the museum before 9 p.m.

They were counting on the crane reaching speeds of about seven miles per hour. But the wind blew and the boiler grates clogged and the coals wouldn't get hot enough, so there wasn't enough steam to push the crane along, the Riverside Paper Corp. of Appleton which used it in its yards until 1963.

The Chicago and North Western Railway Co. granted the railroad museum the use of its tanks, but only until 9 p.m. last Sunday. Crewmen, realizing they couldn't make it to Green Bay, abandoned the crane. Along with a gondola bearing the huge boom, on a siding here.

Robert Kirschling, railroad museum manager, said Thursday a North Western switch run by the Riverside Paper Corp. clogged and the coals wouldn't get hot enough, so there wasn't enough steam to push the crane along, the Riverside Paper Corp. of Appleton which used it in its yards until 1963.

Menasha Officials Skeptical Of Unified School District

MENASHA — Two top city officials reacted strongly against the idea of a unified school district for Menasha today.

"No way!" Mayor James Adams said, when asked his opinion.

"I wouldn't buy that at all," said Finance Committee Chairman Herbert Batley.

Both men said it would be giving too much power to the board of education.

The idea came from School Supt. Dr. Alan Osterndorf on Thursday, following a meeting of the city's capital improvements committee the night before when it was decided to put the school board's proposal for a $2 million building program on a referendum in April.

Osterndorf said a dependent school district, like the one presently in Menasha, is supposed to include cooperative efforts between the city and school officials to carry out a program beneficial for both groups. But when that cooperation wanes, as he believes it has in this case, then it may be time to look at the unified school district approach, in which the school board would be directly responsible to the people and levy its own taxes.

The issue revolves around what city officials, like Adams and Batley, argue is the overriding need for sewer and sewage plant improvements (state orders require compliance in 1973) that will take most of the capital improvement's money.

School officials, like Osterndorf, argue that both school and city needs can be met, cooperatively.

Adams said today that not only does he feel the school projects can be delayed while the city answers their pressing sewer needs, but also:

"I'm not even sure the expansions are necessary at all," he said. The plans call for a $450,000 remodeling and expansion of Nicolet Elementary School; a $660,000 expansion of Butte des Morts Junior High and a $1,041,000 addition to Menasha High School.

School officials wanted to bond for all three projects next year, and begin construction at Nicolet in January. The capital improvements committee, however, has recommended putting the entire program on a referendum in April, 1972. That recommendation now goes to the fiscal control board for action, probably on Sept. 7.

Adams believes that the expansion plans could be circumvented if the district converted to a year-around operation. He said he would have a report and proposals on that within a month, for possible action by the fiscal control board.

McKinley Remodeling On Deadline

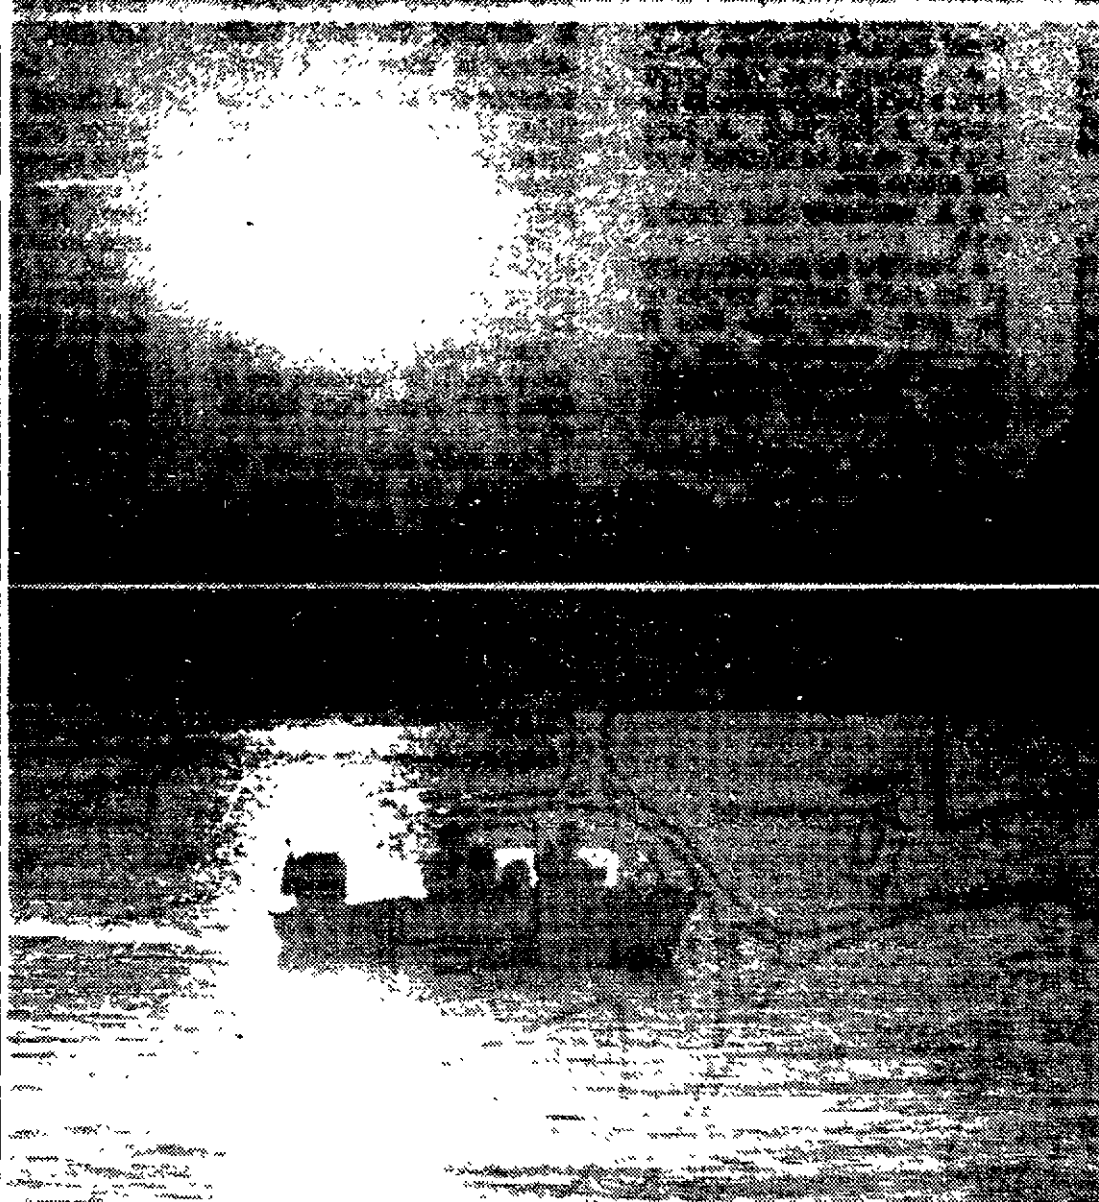

NEENAH — As the opening of school approaches Sept. 7, workers are finishing up some remodeling at McKinley School, and it looks like it will be a deadline finish.

The school is being converted from an elementary school to a primary school, but this is not the main reason for the remodeling work. The school was in bad need of repair and updating in some areas.

The new windows are at the site, but are not all installed yet. Dean Budde, Neenah schools supervisor of buildings and grounds, said that workers are aiming for a Tuesday completion on the windows.

There is also carpeting to be put down, but the carpeting as of this morning, had not yet arrived. Budde said it was supposed to arrive today, and the carpet installers have estimated that it would take about two days to put it down.

Painting of interior classrooms has been completed, and other areas in the school are being finished in the pastel colors. Budde said there would be no problem here.

COG Forecasts Growth

500,000 to Need Housing

NEENAH-MENASHA — Try amounting to about two thirds taken to bring the document to ing to cram another 225,000 of the cost, with the remaining its final form is safely estimated at about $35,000, with some of the money coming from a HUD 701 administered program.

The land use, although flexible in its outline, is being recommended for adoption by all the COG municipalities to provide a guide for long-range planning plus give all municipalities some idea of how to make allowances for the onslaught of people which is expected by 2,000.

One of the key uses of the land use map will be for municipal plan commissions to get a picture of how to zone for the future.

With neighboring municipalities following the land use plan, situations like zoning single family homes in one community would fit into the same type of the several years and many development in the next municipality.

As preludes to the land use, COG has completed studies into such public works functions as water supplies, sewage treatment, storm water and solid waste disposal.

While these studies were being conducted during the past three years, the information learned contributed toward the final land use draft.

For example, to determine what areas would need waste water treatment, information had to be gathered concerning soil conditions and where soil would be able to handle septic tanks. By determining this, the land use map reflects population densities.

All the studies which were considered input toward the land use document were in part financed through federal grants

Winnebago Seeks $37,056 for 13 Jobs

OSHKOSH — Winnebago County has applied for $37,056 to fund 13 new jobs for six months in the first phase of utilizing the President's $1 billion Emergency Employment Act.

But how many more jobs will be allocated to the county, and from there to other public employers, such as cities located within the county's borders remains uncertain at this point.

County Board Chairman Orrin King, who was appointed by the secretary of labor to administer the emergency work program in the county, said today that it "is kind of up in the air at this point."

According to the manpower chief in the Wisconsin State Employment office at Madison, the fact that local units are required to pick up the full cost of the new employees after two years may be why there has not been a great rush by city officials to get in on the program — plus uncertainty about the program and the fact that county positions are being filled first.

Neenah Director of Administration J. J. Kraus said that city has not done anything to participate in the emergency employment program mainly because there has been no word from the county as to the number of positions made available.

With local taxpayers scheduled to foot the bill for the new jobs in two years, Kraus said the city could not afford to use the program to hire personnel who were not really needed.

"But if we have a legitimate need, I'm sure we'll do something about it," Kraus said. Lamm said the county had expected to hear this week on the status of its application for the first 13 jobs, but hadn't yet.

County Jobs
The county will fill the jobs first before they make any allocation to cities such as Neenah or Menasha, King said. "On the first go-around, counties are going to fill the positions available, because this benefits everyone in the county," King added in explaining why the first 13 jobs applied for were for work in county departments.

"Once we get a second funding, we will notify other public employers in the county," King said, but he added that county positions would probably be filled first from the second allotment as well.

Arson Suspected in St. Nazianz Barn Fire

ST. NAZIANZ — Arson is the suspected cause of a spectacular fire that destroyed a barn and damaged three other buildings in the village early Thursday.

Earl A. Schwabe of Green Bay, a deputy state fire marshal, was called in to head an investigation of the blaze. The investigation is expected to extend into the weekend. Local fire authorities and the Manitowoc County Sheriff's Department are assisting him.

The 28-by-100 foot barn on Main St.-County Trunk C had been used by owner Dan Goesse of St. Nazianz, to store two antique cars, two trucks and other equipment.

Village Fire Chief Rembert Broecker said Thursday he thought the blaze had been caused by a minor explosion, such as a firecracker. He said he was awakened about 2:30 a.m. by the explosion at the barn about a half block from his home.

Hearing Set for Michigan Man

Charged With Two Counts for Link With Stolen Horse Trailers

WAUPACA — Walter C. Edgar Sr., 50, Wilson, Mich., appeared Thursday in County Court Branch 1 and was charged with two counts of theft.

Man Killed as He Fumbles at Opening Safe

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas V. Higgins was unfamiliar with the combination on the supermarket safe, and missed it the first time around. He never got to try it again.

Higgins moved too slow to please one of four robbers of a Bohack supermarket in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn recently, and the bandit shot and killed the 58-year-old assistant store manager, police said.

Higgins is normally assigned to another store in the chain, but was filling in for the vacationing manager of the store that the four robbers entered.

Three went to the cash registers, and two of them drev guns, police said. They netted $781 from the cash registers.

Another armed bandit confronted Higgins and ordered the safe opened. Higgins fumbled nervously with the combination as the robber cursed and threatened him.

Suddenly, the bandit began hitting Higgins in the head with the gun. As Higgins fell, the bandit fled, but whirled and shot Higgins once in the side, police said. All four robbers then escaped in a waiting car, police said. There were no other injuries.

Judge Wendell McHenry set a preliminary hearing for 2 p.m. Sept. 15, fixed bond a $3,500 and freed Edgar upon the cash payment of $3580. The hearing will be in County Court Branch 2 before Judge Nathan Wiese.

Edgar appeared in court Thursday on his own volition with attorney John Englund, Iron River, Mich. The Outagamie and Waupaca county sheriff departments recovered an estimated $14,000 in goods last week and alleged to be in Edgar's possession, which were stolen last January in Appleton and Manawa.

Horse Trailer

The two counts entered here Thursday, were for theft of a two-horse trailer, valued at $2,100 on Jan. 13, and a one-horse trailer, valued at $2,300 stolen from Trail-Et, Inc. on or about Jan. 15, this year.

Edgar was instructed by Judge McHenry not to contact his son Walter C. Edgar Jr., either personally or through an agent, after Dist. Atty. Gerald K. Anderson's request that this be a condition of the bond. Anderson told the court that Walter Edgar Jr. would be a witness for the state.

WSES Sees Influx of Job Applications

the Appleton WSES office. Woehler explained, while the EEA program probably will provide jobs for between 60 and 80 persons.

Two-thirds of the EEA persons hired in the county must be put in non-professional and semi-professional jobs, he said. The other one-third may be hired for professional positions, although the council still must decide what jobs are ranked professional, semi-professional, and non-professional.

Woehler displayed a stack of letters of request for public service manpower. The most recent request, he said, came from Sheriff Calvin L. Spive who asked for two more policemen.

It is hoped there will still be a need for the new jobs after the federal funding ends in July, 1973.

The new employees must receive all the benefits and conditions of employment as regular municipal employees, Woehler explained. This, he said, will cause some procedural problems because not all municipalities have the same fringe benefits program.

Louella Knaup, who heads the county's payroll department, will be hired for payroll and report work on the EEA program, Woehler said. The EEA monies must be held in a special county trust account and will be regularly audited by federal officials.

Matching Funds
Municipalities sharing in the EEA plan must provide a total of 10 per cent matching funds, Woehler said.

The council will meet again Tuesday afternoon. One of its biggest early jobs will be to work out a method by which the funds are distributed to the needy municipalities. "We have to identify which communities get top priorities," Woehler said.

Members of his council, who serve without pay, are Wolff; Orlyn Ziemann, district administrator of the Appleton Public School System; Gerald Lang, Appleton personnel director; William Schuh, county corporation counsel; Donald Stone, manager of the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce; and Carl Sorcie, business manager of the Appleton Building Trades Council.

Good Memory Needed For Blindfold Stunt

BY CAPPY DICK
The blindfold stunt described as today's fun-project for boys and girls is for several players. Special equipment is needed and this should be prepared ahead of time.
The idea of the game is to have each blindfolded player put together six pieces of thin cardboard to form a complete farm scene as in figure 1.
In preparation, make the clouds, a house, a barn, a windmill and a tree. You should first draw these things assembled as a complete picture as in figure 1, then cut them out so they are separate pieces. Color each one properly, of course.

A seventh prop to be prepared is a blank piece of paper large enough to serve as the background for the six pieces. Across the bottom edge of this piece draw a strip, colored green, to represent the earth in the foreground.
Place the completed scene on this background and allow the player to look at it for two minutes. Then blindfold him, scramble the pieces and give them to him with instructions to reconstruct the picture he has just seen.
The players take turns. They will be amazed at how completely out of line their efforts will be.
Tomorrow: A homemade bottle-cap jumping game! It's fun!

Comic Harvey Korman Top Second Banana

Worries, 'Butterflies' Also Have Part In Preparing Comedy-Variety Show

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "One of the illusions a professional actor has to give is that he is enjoying what he is doing. If he isn't enjoying it, obviously the audience will not enjoy it."

Harvey Korman, second banana on CBS's "Carol Burnett Show," says putting on a weekly comedy-variety show isn't all singing and dancing. It's also butterflies in the stomach and sometimes praying your way through a performance.

"Golf is fun. Reading is fun. Playing with your children is fun. Sex is fun. Acting is not fun," he said.

"I don't enjoy acting. It's the most difficult thing. If there's anything worse than not acting it's acting. Once I'm out there and on it's okay, but working up to it is painful."

Korman, who has that dour expression comics seem to wear off the stage, looked over and said, "Oh, God, are you taking all that down? This is going to be another negative piece."

Harvey Korman is a pain in the neck. Harvey Korman wants off the Carol Burnett show.

Busy Schedule

It appears that Korman may just be indulging in a little good-natured grousing. In his time off from the Burnett show, which is moving to Wednesdays at 8 p.m. in the fall, he is making three industrial films in Milwaukee and doing stock in Dayton, Columbus, Toledo and Warren, Ohio. He also made an ABC Movie of the Week, "Suddenly Single," with Hal Holbrook.

He has a pilot commitment from CBS, but that doesn't mean he's leaving the Burnett show. "When you're in a good show, one that works, to make a move away from it is something you have to give a lot of thought to," he said.

Korman has spent his television career getting second billing on other people's shows—but he's probably the best second banana in the business. He won Emmy awards for individual achievement in 1969 and 1971.

Reality Changes

"Being an actor is a schizophrenic thing, with the reality and the unreality," he said. "One period I was only comfortable on stage. That was the reality."

"You're obviously able to do things on stage that you can't do otherwise. You can be loud. You can show bravado. You can be faggy. You can't do these things in life."

"But these are all part of me," Korman said. "I don't feel that I'm hiding behind a mask. I'm just using another part of me. I'm surprised when people say I'm versatile because I just see me."

Modified Stocks, Gas Coupes Race At WIR Saturday

Stock cars, modified stock and gas coupes headline Saturday night's races starting at 9 p.m. at the Wisconsin International Raceway.

Racing in all trophy classes is also on tap. Grudge racing will be held Saturday afternoon, beginning at 2 p.m. and continuing (ill 5 p.m. Car entry, drivers and spectators are $1 each.

Today in History

Today is Friday, Aug. 27, the 239th day of 1971. There are 126 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, American troops began landing in Japan at the end of World War II. It was the first foreign occupation of Japan in modern history.

On this date: In 55 B.C. forces under Julius Caesar invaded Britain. In 1776, the British were victors in the Battle of Long Island in the Revolutionary War. In 1859, the first oil well in the United States were drilled near Titusville, Pa.

In 1923, the Kellogg-Briand Pact to outlaw war was signed in Paris. In 1916, Italy declared war on Germany. In 1939, Germany demanded Danzig and the Polish Corridor. Ten years ago: 50 persons were killed when a bus plunged into a river near Trichur, India.

Five years ago: The Soviet Union demanded that Communist China protect the Soviet Embassy in Peking from anti-Soviet demonstrators. One year ago: The U.S. Command in South Vietnam reported 52 American fatalities in one week was the lowest combat toll in four years.

Patterns of Migration in NBC Special

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 Channel 5 — Leaving Home Blues: An NBC News White Paper on Rural Migration deals with migration from rural to urban areas. Given the existing overcrowding in the cities, if the present migration patterns continue, life in large metropolitan areas will become unbearable in the next 10 years. The documentary covers three sections of the country — North Carolina, Texas and Nebraska — where people are leaving the land because there is no work and moving to urban areas. Producer Martin Carr shows that rural to urban migrations gobble up the whole thing. (R) is a "multi-racial problem" that needs to be solved.

7:30-9 Channel 5 — The Name of the Game has an action-packed show with a good performance from Pete Duel, as Comedienne Pat Carroll, in a dark wig and with an Italian accent, does a good job in a dramatic role on The Interns. She plays the mother of a film is everything. He's making a documentary with money from Howard Publications, and he's causing trouble in the logging camp where he's filming. (R)

6:30-7:30 Channel 5 — 8-10 Channels 2-7 — The Hugh Downs turns up in Australia to show off The Great Barrier Reef, the world's largest coral reef. Hugh shows us the life that inhabits the reef title role, with Elizabeth Taylor and dwells on the fact that a spiny coral-eating starfish has invaded the area and just may Troy. Magic Number 2

Foxes Near Title, As Gossage Hurls 4-Hit, 3-0 Win

BY DAN VANDERFAS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"It's just great... I've never felt this way before," reacted Rich Gossage in the jubilant, Foxes dressing room after he picked up his 18th win of the season, a sparkling 3-0 tour-hitter over Cedar Rapids at Goodland Field Thursday night.

The win boosted Appleton to a 1½-game advantage over the Cards in the Northern Division of the Midwest League with only three road contests remaining.

The 1,534 Penny-Night fans, who turned out to watch Appleton's most valuable player fire a mere 110 pitches enroute to his seventh shutout, set a new season attendance record of 83,881 surpassing the 1970 mark of 83,818. The figure is even more impressive in view of the fact that the team had only 56 home dates this year, compared to 59 last season.

Appleton moves into Wisconsin Rapids for a 3-game stand, beginning tonight, which will conclude the regular ML season. Cedar Rapids entertains Quincy in its final three games. The first-half champion Foxes' magic number is two. Any combination of two Foxes wins or Cardinal losses will assure Appleton of the second-round title.

The crowd was treated to an old-fashioned pitchers' duel for five innings, as the two starters, Gossage and Bob Forsch, hurled scoreless baseball.

16 Straight Batters Gossage retired 16 straight batters between the second and seventh stanzas. With Appleton ahead, 3-0, in the seventh, Kurpiel broke the string with a ground single to right. Jim Hairston hit into a force play and Gary Breshears drew a walk to put runners at first and second. Gossage then initiated a timely double play when he picked up Manny Abreu's grounder and threw to Bucky Dent on second, who relayed to Lamar Johnson.

Gossage, who is now 18-2, fanned seven to increase his total for the year to 150. His ERA dropped from 1.92 to 1.82, and despite being relieved after five innings in Monday night's action, he has surrendered only one earned run in the last 50 innings.

In the decisive sixth, Joe Talley greeted Forsch with a still out. A more definitive test ground single to right, and Alex Barrett followed with a squib, experienced forward wall willer that was handled by the Cards' pitcher and thrown into center field on the attempt to encounter the Oakland Raiders.

With two men aboard, and nobody out, Cedar Rapids moved in for a possible bunt by Jerry Hairston, but he countered with the key blast of the game, a long drive that landed well over the centerfielder's head in front of the fence, 400 feet from the plate.

After the dust had cleared, Talley and Barrett had touched home, and Hairston was perched on third.

Artega Scores Edito Artega complemented the triple with a line-drive single to center to push Hair-laffer which Ed Kurpiel ad-ston across with the third vanced the runner to second marker.

Gossage had trouble with the Cards in the first inning, when off second, was then picked off first pre-season success against Miami last time out. And, with all due respect to the considerable contributions of Scott Hunter and a musery defense, it was the key to that 10-7 victory over the Dolphins.

New found ability to move the ball alleviated the pressure on the defensive unit, which had been uncommonly long on the field in the Pack's two previous exhibition ventures, and eased Hunter's pro starting debut at quarterback.

A performance which bodes well for the future, it was punctuated by some incisive blocking and virtually flawless pass protection on the part of Ken Bowman. Gale Gillingham, Bill Lueck and Dick Humes, along with Bill Hayhoe, Cal Withrow and Francis Peay.

Jury Out But the jury, necessarily, is still out. A more definitive test ground single to right, and Alex Barrett followed with a squib, experienced forward wall willer that was handled by the Cards' pitcher and thrown into center field on the attempt to encounter the Oakland Raiders.

The magnitude of the challenge can be found in the pre-season statistics, which revealed Oakland has permitted its three opponents an average of just 2.7 yards per rush.

This niggardly impressive figure has not evolved entirely by chance. "Our defense has been

One of the Top Contenders in Sunday's Fox Valley regatta on Little Lake Butte des Morts is expected to be "The Last Hurrah," driven by Gregg Ostrowski, of Berwyn, Ill. The 18-foot inboard recently won a national event in Dayton, O.

Powerful Inboards Will Race Here

"The Last Hurrah," "Mai Tai," "Miss Heavy Hauler," and "Whiplash" are among the powerful hydroplanes that will thunder around the Little Lake Butte des Morts course Sunday in the first annual Fox Valley regatta.

The inboards — those are the big ones with housepowers of 625 to 1,500 and which reach speeds of 100 to 170 miles per hour — will make their first appearance in the Fox Cities. The only other place that the inboards have raced in Wisconsin in recent years was at Madison.

Stroebe Island Haven will be host for the noon-to-dusk program. The races are sanctioned by the American Power Association and the Chain O' Lakes Boat Club, Chicago, will be in charge.

Among the more than 50 entries expected from all over the country will be the "Whiplash," driven by Appleton's Denny Brucks. This one will race in the super stock class, one of seven categories of boats. Among other classes are the SK, the 3-litre, the 5-litre and the 7-litre.

National Title Gregg Ostrowski, of Berwyn, Ill., will bring his SK runabout, "The Last Hurrah," that he used to win a national championship event at Dayton, O., earlier this month. The 18-foot craft boasts a 600-h.p. Chevy powerplant.

Gene Whipp, an Ohio driver, is expected to pilot the Lenny Reyden-owned "Miss Heavy Hauler." This 7-litre hydroplane boasts a string of eight straight wins and won the national point title in 1968.

Another of the top entries is the 5-litre "Mai Tai," built by California's Ron Jones and driven by Marv Bernstein, River Forest, Ill. It has speeds up to 170.

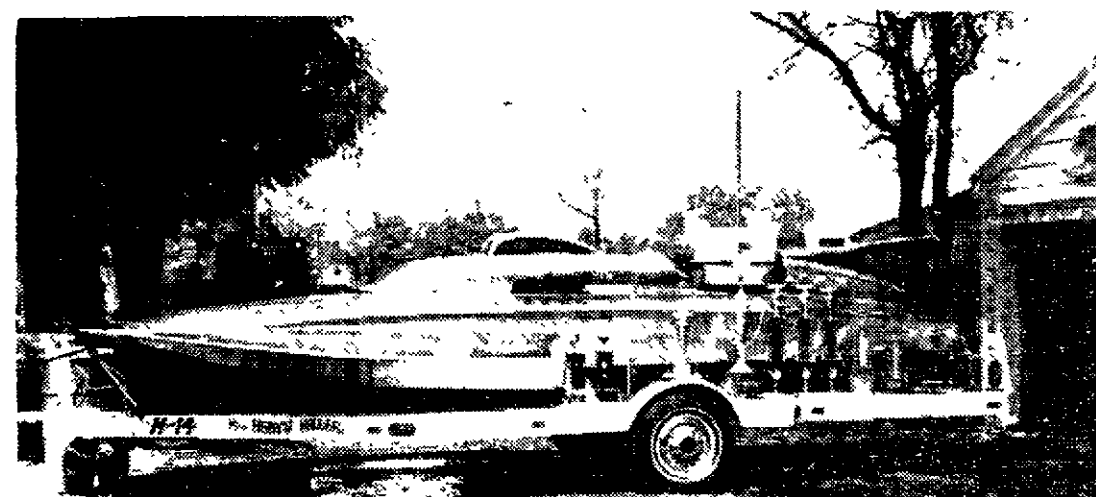

A sky diving exhibition will open the program at 12:30 p.m. A water ski exhibition by Aqua Foxes II has also been scheduled.

10 Heats Set Ten heats of racing will be held, after which two grand prix (open competition) will provide the climax. In each heat drivers zoom four times around a 1½-mile oval course.

A racing permit for Sunday has been secured from the Coast Guard and regular boats will be stopped at each end of the course and escorted through periodically.

Fans can reach the racing site by taking Highway 41 and turning east on Stroebe Road, opposite the 41 Outdoor Theater. The admission is $1 per person, with children under 12 free if accompanied by adults.

An average hydroplane costs between $10,000 and $15,000 to build. Engines, which blow out periodically, cost about $6,000 to replace.

"Miss Heavy Hauler," driven by Ohio's Gene Whipp, won the national point championship in 1968. The boat is entered in Sunday's Fox Valley regatta.

Pro-Am Set Sunday at BDM

NEW Open Starts Monday

A field of 160 golfers is poised Monday and Tuesday. Sunday's climax is a banquet for the pro-am portion of the Northeastern Wisconsin Golf Association (NEWGA) Open Year' Tournament at the Butte des Morts Country Club Sunday.

The 18-hole event, a best-ball foursome affair, will see 40 teams involved in the competition. The pro-am serves as a preliminary to the regular 36-hole medal play meet, which is to be held on the same course

Cowboys Use Safety Blitz In 28-20 Win

Dallas Tops Oilers In All-Texas Tilt With Two Late TDs

HOUSTON (AP) — With Lynn Dickey, the brilliant rookie from Kansas State, as the victim, the Dallas Cowboys used the safety blitz Thursday night to break up a rough and tough exhibition game and reclaim the "Texas Championship" with a 28-20 victory over the Houston Oilers.

With 3:42 remaining in the final period and the Cowboys clinging to a 14-13 lead, the Dallas Blitz enabled Cornell Green to intercept a Dickey blitz Thursday night to break up a rough and tough exhibition game and reclaim the "Texas Championship" with a 28-20 victory over the Houston Oilers.

Just 70 seconds later, after covering a kickoff fumble, the Cowboys put the game out of reach as Dan Reeves, on a fieldgoal fake, passed eight yards to D. D. Lewis for the fourth touchdown.

The Cowboys are undefeated in four exhibition games.

First Start Dickey, making his first start as a pro quarterback completed 14 of 31 passes for 295 yards and two touchdowns but blamed himself for the interception that

Eliminates Mike Hill

Palmer Advances In Match Play Test

By BOB GREEN Associated Press Golf Writer PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Arnold Palmer's made up his mind.

"I've come to the conclusion that it's a good tournament," he said after scoring a 68-71 victory over Mike Hill and leading the advance into today's third round of the $200,000 United States Professional Match Play Golf Championship.

"It's going to take time to develop, of course. Any tournament does.

"But it's interesting. I think the spectators like it. Almost anything can happen out there.

"An illustration of what could happen, almost did happen today."

Fine Finish He was referring to the eagle-birdie finish by Hill that turned what appeared to be a routine Palmer victory into a minor drama.

Hill, 32-year-old younger brother of Dave Hill, was five strokes down with two holes to play in the head-to-head competition in which scoring is based on total strokes over 18 holes.

He holed out a 120-yard wedge shot for an eagle two on the 17th and made up two strokes. And he put his second shot on the front of the green on the 484-yard, par-five finishing hole while Palmer was shot in two.

Settles Doubts "Now he's in position to make another eagle and I could have three-putted or something and we're looking at a playoff," Palmer said. Hill left his eagle putt short, however, while Palmer pitched to 15 feet and made the putt for a birdie of his own to settle all doubts.

It was Palmer's fourth birdie of the day—he didn't have a bogey—was his second consecutive four-under-par effort and stamped him as a prime threat for the $35,000 first prize in this five-day tournament with a unique format.

Palmer had withheld comment on the format after winning his first round event, but gave it a strong endorsement after his second-round triumph.

"It's different. It offers some variety. I think that's good," he said. "Look, we play 50 or 60 stroke tournaments a year. Now we've got something different in the team championship. And we've got something different here. That's good."

Faces Eichelberger Palmer, gunning for a fifth title this season, will play Dave Eichelberger in today's third round. Eichelberger, 28-year-old winner of the Milwaukee Open earlier this season, eliminated Lionel Hebert 72-76.

Oddly enough, almost one third of the surviving field—five out of sixteen—is 41 years old or older.

In addition to Palmer, they are Julius Boros, the 51-year-old National Seniors champion; Gene Littler, 41; Art Wall, 47; and Gardner Dickinson, 43.

Boros eliminated Terry Dill 73-76. Wall turned back rookie Hubert Green 71-73, while Littler and Dickinson won in sudden-death playoffs, each with a birdie on the first extra hole.

Littler and Dave Hill tied 71-71 and Dickinson and Hinson tied 73-73.

Cody Eliminated Canadian George Knudson birdied the final hole to eliminate Masters champ Charles. Cody 68-69 in one of the day's better matches on the 6,973-yard, par-72 Country Club of North Carolina course.

Ray Floyd, a 67-69 upset winner over Jack Nicklaus in the first round, slipped to a 73 but still advanced over Bob Smith, who had a 74.

Easier to Get Best Price

Integrated Market Would Help Small Man

NEW YORK (AP) — The small investor is likely to get a better run for his money if all stock exchanges are integrated into a single national system, securities industry sources say.

"It would mean that your broker would be able to more easily find out the best price for you," a top executive of a New York Stock Exchange member firm said Thursday.

Integration—not merger—of the exchanges was recommended recently by William McChesney Martin, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, who made a study of the securities industry for the New York Stock Exchange.

The Big Board is beginning to take steps to implement Martin's proposals. And the Securities and Exchange Commission this week said it would begin hearings Oct. 12 on the "desirability, structure and needs" of forming a national exchange system.

"The best price for a stock would come to a single market place," James W. Davant, president of the brokerage firm of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, said in discussing the probable effect on investors of the Martin proposal.

"This is an endeavor to get all buy orders and all sell orders to a single market place where you should be able to get the best execution."

Davant was a member of an advisory committee of Big

Board members appointed to work with Martin.

Another Wall Street source said that under a national system, with all transactions appearing on single ticker tape, the average investor would know more about what was going on in the market.

"He would see transactions of more stocks on the tape, and the reports would more closely reflect the market," this source said. "These more exact and broader reports would tend to minimize large price fluctuations."

He also said an integrated system could put the small investor on "a more equitable status" with institutional investors—mutual funds, pension funds, banks and insurance companies. In recent years, the institutions have become a major influence on the market.

Another advantage to the small investor, said a Wall Streeter, would be to bring uniformity to the regulatory activities of all exchanges.

Some observers point out that the various exchanges operate computer systems of various types and, if there is to be integration, expensive adjustments or replacements would have to be made.

Probably the first visible evidence of a new era in stock trading will be a ticker tape carrying the quotations of the New York, American and regional exchanges.

Women's Lib To be Seeking Political Power

manded and got drinks at the bar.

In less frenetic events, women in Pittsburgh sold hot dogs and buttons at a rally in Point State Park to raise money for the National Women's Political Caucus.

A fund-raising dance held in Winston-Salem, N.C., also provided funds for the women's lobby.

In Chicago, 500 demonstrators became enraged when a microphone being used at their rally was cut off. They flooded into City Hall, where Mayor Richard J. Daley told them it wasn't his doing.

Political Nature

At a news conference in Washington, leaders of the female lobbying group emphasized the political nature of their strategy.

Carroll Burris of the National Organization for Women—NOW—said women's liberationists would campaign against any "Congress person" who failed to support the women's equal rights amendment to the Constitution.

"In 40 to 43 states, women's activists have gone to see Congress people in virtually every district," she said.

The spokeswoman said a NOW poll showed that about 165 of the 535 senators and representatives plan to vote for the amendment, "and there are enough Congress people who are undecided but favorably disposed towards the amendment to give us a two-thirds majority."

Seemed to Listen

Some politicians seemed to be listening. Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., who is considering running for the Democratic presidential nomination, said in Tampa, Fla., that women should have 53 per cent of the delegates' seats at the Democratic convention because that is their proportion of the population. He said he would challenge any delegation that did not have equal representation for women.

Mayor John V. Lindsay proclaimed "Women's Rights Day" in New York City and assured a delegation of activists that women would get more city appointments. He also chose the day to swear in the city's first female police captain, Mrs. Gertrude Schimmel, 52. The new captain, who had to sue to get a series of promotions, said she was happy to have "liberated" the department and considered herself a "spiritual sister" of the activists.

Register Drive

In Vermont, the governor's commission on the status of women announced a drive to get women registered and more active in politics.

College students, labor unionists and YWCA members were among the women who demonstrated on the floor of the Michigan House of Representatives in Lansing in support of a resolution condemning discrimination against women.

In Portland, Maine, 15 members of a new NOW chapter picketed the Guy Gannett Publishing Co. to protest newspaper employment ads that listed jobs separately for males and females.

decided, but "I think it will fall somewhere between the extremes," which he described as doing nothing or imposing wage-price controls.

The Washington Post, meantime, said the U.S. Chamber of Commerce had rejected a White House proposal to lobby for a mandatory retirement law that would force Meany to step down as president of the AFL-CIO.

Disclosure of the move was made at about the time Hodgson was conferring with Meany to guarantee that organized labor will be given a role in determining what will take place in the post-freeze period.

Past Story

The White House plan for dumping Meany, the Post said, developed earlier in the week.

The Post said an unidentified White House official telephoned Arch N. Booth, executive vice president of the chamber, to suggest that the organization support legislation to require labor leaders to retire at 70.

It was learned, the newspaper said, that the chamber first considered following the White House suggestion. It then rejected it after one chamber official said it would be just as logical for the federal government to require corporation executives to retire at 70.

An AFL-CIO spokesman said Meany would have no comment on the disclosure.

In San Clemente, Calif., a White House spokesman termed the Post story a "complete fabrication." Booth also issued a denial.

"The national chamber," he said in a statement, "has not been asked by anyone to undertake a campaign to put an age limit on union officials. It (the chamber) never has and is not now considering such a proposal."

The administration's chief of planning for Stage 2 of the anti-inflation drive, Herbert Stein, said "We would most devoutly hope to avoid ... movement in the direction of wage and price control."

"We regard Stage 2 as a stage in the transition from the freeze to free markets, and so will be looking at various possibilities of trimming the coverage, of adopting the guidelines, of invoking the cooperation in one way or another," said Stein, vice chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Ruled Out

Stein virtually ruled out an extension of the freeze. He predicted mounting problems as it continues toward Nov. 12, saying people can be expected to stand pat only for a short time.

The problems faced by teachers, whose salary status has been cloudy since President Nixon announced the freeze Aug. 15, were dealt with again Thursday by the Cost of Living Council.

The council declared that teachers working under a single, systemwide master contract in effect before the freeze would get the new pay rate if any teachers received it before the freeze.

A teacher holding an individual contract would be eligible for a raise if he accrued earnings at the new rate "which covered a period prior to Aug. 15, although he or she may not have actually performed any work during that period."

Not Exempt

Professional athletes were told they are not exempt from the freeze. The council said athletes who didn't enter into new contracts prior to Aug. 15 could not negotiate for new contracts covering their services during the freeze period.

AFL-CIO lawyers met here to discuss the legal aspects of the President's economic policies. Specifically, said J. Albert Woll, general counsel for the federation, "we are discussing whether or not it was an improper delegation of powers" by Congress to give Nixon authority for the freeze.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey called the freeze unfair to the working man, and urged Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana to call a Democratic caucus to determine what changes are needed.

Assistant Senate Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin of Michigan criticized politicians who "have been trying so desperately to undercut and destroy President Nixon's prescription for economic recovery."

Rapped Politicians

Worsening trade deficits were cited by President Nixon when he announced a 10-per-cent import surcharge and loosening of the dollar from its tie with gold. And, Thursday, the deficit record stretched to a fourth month as the Commerce Department reported a July trade of imports exceeding exports by $304.1 million.

From January through July, the department said, the trade deficit has grown to $876.4 million.

Large Deficit

At home, the Treasury Department said, running the government created a $5.3-billion deficit in July with spending at $18.5 billion and revenues totaling $13.2 billion.

Another Canadian delegation, the second to visit Washington since announcement of an import surcharge, met with Treasury officials for four hours Thursday.

There was no agreement reached, reported Sidney S. Reisman, Canada's deputy finance minister, although the talks produced a "better understanding."

In the foreign exchange marts of Europe, the dollar fell in London and Zurich, but rallied a bit in Frankfurt and Paris. The losses remain less than expected in Washington.

British Like Floating Yen

Expect Move Will Reduce Japanese Exports to U.S.

LONDON (AP) — The British and European currency markets reacted favorably today to Japan's decision to float the yen.

Foreign exchanges were generally wary and quotations against the dollar, the British pound, the Swiss and French francs and the German mark were hesitant and fluctuating except in Germany where the dollar fell.

Common Market sources in Brussels welcomed the Japanese decision as helpful in firming up the true value of currency exchanges.

The Europeans reckon that Japanese exports to the United States would be cut by a rise in the value of the yen.

Dollar Dropped

In Frankfurt the dollar dropped from a high of 3.41 to 3.387 marks on the open market, fractionally above the Aug. 13 fixing and amounting to a 7.18 per cent upward revaluation. The mark had been floating from its 3.66 to the dollar pegging since May 9.

The British pound weakened to $2.4690 from Thursday's $2.4725 which meant that a dollar bought only 41.7 pence. The old parity was $2.40.

Financial circles in London said the floating yen would help remove the major obstacle of a general realignment of currency rate. Some said the Japanese should have done this earlier and others thought a simple revaluation of the yen would have been more positive.

French bankers regarded the move as in line with the American desire for a revaluation of the yen. They agreed with the British that ultimately a realignment of all major currencies is bound to revolve.

Not Traded

Rome, where yen are not traded on the Italian exchange market, reacted slowly. The feeling among brokers, though, was that a sharp revaluation of the yen would be welcomed by Italians who would gain competitiveness in markets where they meet the Japanese in head-on trade.

They point out that lire revaluation to the dollar is in fractional percentage.

Courtroom Melee Erupts Soledads Trial Set Sept. 20

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — After a violent, blood-spattered court-hearing, a Sept. 20 trial date has been set for two surviving Soledad Brothers accused of murdering a prison guard more than a year and a half ago.

The club-and fist-swinging melee erupted Thursday after Doris Maxwell, mother of defendant John Clutchette, shouted a vulgarly at the judge in a pretrial hearing and he ordered her ejected.

Two black men jumped up and struggled with police officers and several black women spectators pushed toward Mrs. Maxwell. All were separated from the judge and defendants by a bulletproof glass partition erected in anticipation of possible trouble.

A dozen police tactical squad officers rushed in, swinging riot sticks.

Two bailiffs, three policemen, and a spectator were injured in the violence and two men were arrested.

One of those arrested was Philip Jake Price, 25, of Oakland, Calif. Officers hustled him out of the room but he fought his way back moments later with blood streaming from wounds over his eyes.

While baton-wielding officers pushed and knocked several men and women spectators to the floor, Price was pushed down in a corner, handcuffed and led away.

Mrs. Maxwell fell to the floor in the courtroom aisle during the disorder. Police said "she got up and walked out after the thing was over." She was not

Jarring May Try Renewing Mideast Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Diplomatic sources predicted today that Gunnar V. Jarring will make a new effort next month to get the Israelis and Arabs talking.

They said Jarring, the Swedish ambassador to Moscow, will arrive in New York about mid-September to resume his role as special U.N. envoy for the Middle East. He will begin by talking with the Israeli and Arab foreign ministers who are coming to New York for the U.N. General Assembly.

Jarring has been trying since the end of 1967 to get the adversaries of the six-day war to open negotiations for a settlement. The closest he has come was indirect talks last winter between the Israeli, Egyptian and Jordanian delegates to the United Nations with Jarring acting as go-between. Neither the Jews nor the Arabs gave any ground, and Jarring went back to Moscow.

Some sources said that while on vacation in Sweden this summer, Jarring offered to return to New York to talk with the Arab and Israeli ambassadors again.

They said Secretary-General U Thant advised him instead to give the United States more time to try to work out an interim Egyptian-Israeli agreement to reopen the Suez Canal. But chances for such an agreement do not look good after Asst. Secretary of State Joseph Sisco's recent unproductive visit to Israel.

Line to Get A Big Test

he said. "Before, we'd have one or two coming off the ball and rest holding back."

"It's something you've got to get used to — firing off the ball. You have to come off the ball in one big surge.... We're starting to come in that respect. We're ahead of last year, I think."

Last week's performance, which saw the Packers rush for 142 yards at Miami's expense, had come as no particular surprise, he said.

"I've always felt we've had a good offensive line, even last year when we were draining some criticism. It's a young line, yet one with good experience — we're all 25, 27 or 28 years old and have played four or five years in the league."

"We're finally getting to a point where we have played that long together, so we're starting to work a little more as a unit."

PACKER PATTERN — The Packers' roster remained at 57 only briefly Thursday... Wide receiver Mike Savoy, who reported only Wednesday night, checked out again Thursday morning — without leave.

Coach Dan Devine, patently mystified by Savoy's departure, said, "All I know is that he's not here." Claimed on waivers from the Cardinals, the former Black Hills State athlete had been expected to appear on the practice field after taking his physical.

The other newcomer, former University of Wisconsin performer Danny Crooks, reported Thursday afternoon. A 5-foot-9, 175-pound defensive back he had been released by the Atlanta Falcons.

On the subject of quarterback Zeke Bratkowski, who has been troubled with muscle spasms in his back, Devine reported, "Zeke's loosening up a little more every day... There's a chance he will start Saturday night."

Asked if Hunter would start if Bratkowski is not ready, Devine said, "I'm not sure who we'll start if that should be the case."

He said it is likely another recent casualty, tight end Rich McGeorge, will "play some." McGeorge sat out the second half of the Pittsburgh game and all of last week's contest after incurring bruised ribs on the final play of the first half in the Steeler match.

Rookie fullback John Bockington will draw his third consecutive starting assignment, Devine said, pointing out, "We want to get as much experience to John as we can."

"The only likely change in the lineup would be at outside linebacker, and that would be precipitated by a minor injury." The reference was to veteran Dave Robinson, who has been hampered by a pulled calf muscle.

"Robby didn't do anything yesterday at all," Devine said, "but today he was pretty good."

In this connection, the Packer chieftain said, "I haven't made up my mind on how many linebacksers we'll carry, five or six... But it would be difficult to carry six."

Frank Patrick and Gary Lane alternated in portraying Oakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica, who may get his first start of the season Saturday night, during the Packer defense's drill against the anticipated Raider offense. Lamonica has been withheld to date because of a pulled leg muscle.

Rookie center Richard (Wimpy) Wintner has come by his sobriquet honestly... The 6-foot-4, 260-pound Wintner acquired earlier in the week from New Orleans on waivers, once consumed 27 hamburgers at a single sitting while a high school Junior.

Giants Sign Lease to Play In New 75,000-Seat Stadium

NEW YORK (AP) — New Jersey Gov. William T. Cahill went to New York Thursday and came home with a football team, the New York Giants, who signed a 30-year lease to play in a state-owned stadium to be built in New Jersey by 1975.

Giants' owner and president Wellington Mara signed the lease assuring that his team will move to the planned 75,000-seat stadium to be built in the Hackensack River Meadowlands David A. "Sonny" Werblin, former New York Jets owner and now chairman of the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, signed for the state.

The lease gives the Giants an option to renew and calls on the team to pay an annual rent of 15 per cent of ticket sales revenues. The Giants and the state will share all revenues from stadium concessions.

Parking Space There will be parking space for 25,000 cars and 400 buses and all parking revenues will go to the state authority.

Cahill said, "It's a truly great day for the State of New Jersey and as great a day for New York Giant fans and all the citizens of New York."

The governor said the new Giant Stadium would be "another bridge between New York and New Jersey."

The signing Thursday culminated six months of executive and legislative planning by the Cahill administration to bring New Jersey its first major league sports franchise.

Legislation creating the sports authority and authorizing the construction of a major sports complex on 750 acres of the meadowlands in East Rutherford was passed by the State Senate and Assembly and signed by Cahill last spring.

Ultimate plans for the complex include a racetrack, a baseball stadium, and an exposition and convention center. The project is expected to cost more than $100 million. The money will be raised through revenue bonds.

Operated by State The racetrack is to be operated by the state. Profits from it are expected to pay for the entire complex.

Cahill said Giant Stadium would cost between $30 and $40 million. He said it would be the first facility built at the complex.

Several suits have been filed challenging the State Sports Authority. The chief suit was filed by the state against the authority to test its constitutionality.

The case is before Superior Court Judge Morris Pashman of Bergen County and arguments will be heard Sept. 30.

Cahill said the guiding force in planning for the sports complex and convincing the Giants to move to New Jersey was State Treasurer Joseph McCrane, a former tackle at West Point.

No Desertation Mara said he didn't regard his team's move to New Jersey as a desertion of New York City.

He noted the Mara family has owned and operated the Giants for 46 years, including 31 years during which the team played at the old Polo Grounds in Manhattan and for the last 15 years at Yankee Stadium.

"Each family dreams of the day it can get into its own house and get away from its in-laws."

The Giants have never had their own stadium, but have always been the tenants of other teams or organizations.

Leads Golf League Arlie Ziemann fired a 47 to take honors in the Sunny Six ladies league at Reid Muni.

She, Joyce Leith and Judy Phillips scored birdies. The League's jamboree is slated for Thursday afternoon.

Northern Wisconsin's musky fishing, and the fine sport for lake trout and salmon species on Lake Michigan continue to be the big news in this week's report. No doubt, however, is the improved fishing for walleye, northern pike, bass and catfish in other areas of the Mississippi River to Lake Winnebago.

Good fishing and light pressure is being reported from the Southern District. Some of the hot spots include the Wisconsin River for catfish and smallmouth bass, Wausau Bay for crappie, Yellow Lake for bluegill and northern pike, and Lake Waubesa for yellow bass.

Crappie and salmon and trout has picked up the past week on Lake Michigan along the Southeast District, all counties from Kenosha to Okauchee have good reports. Inland, northern pike are hitting in Washington and Waukesha counties, while Powers Lake in Kenosha County is providing fine bass, walleye and northern fishing.

Fishing for salmon and trout is excellent all along the Lake Michigan District. "Very good" to "excellent" reports are coming in from DNR Wardens in Algoma and Kewaunee, Door County, Washington Island and Green Bay. The fishing inland is also very good this week with Lake Koshong, Lake Kegonsa, and Lake Kegonsa. The fishing in the Wisconsin River is also very good, with reports of good catches of panfish, while Little Green is producing black bass as well as bluegill. A few large walleye are being taken at Big Green Lake, the early morning hours are best for fishing the deeper waters. Good limits of northern and perch are also being caught.

NORTH CENTRAL DISTRICT Antigo Area — Musky fishing is very good throughout the county. Fine reports are coming into DNR wardens from Lakes Alexander, Grandfather, Seven Island and Mohawk. Northern, panfish and bass are providing fair action around Harrison. Walleye are hitting in Minnesota and nightcrawlers on Seven Island and Alexander lakes, while brown trout are giving fair action in the evenings on the Prairie River.

Woodruff Area — Musky are showing fairly good action in the area. Little and Big Arbor Vitae are producing fine action as is Lake Minocqua. Walleye are providing fairly good action on Lindy rigs with nightcrawlers, some nice catches have been reported from Lake Tomahawk. Walleye are doing very well on Shogonegama lakes. Bass and trout fishing is reported fair.

Forest County — Musky action is slow, but northern pike have been hitting fairly well in Scattered Rice, Wabicon, Riley, Pine and Pickering lakes. Bass fishing is slow, but some nice walleye were taken out of Lake Metonga last week. Panfishing continues good on all lakes, and trout fishing is fair to good on streams.

Vilas County — Fishing is generally fair. There has been some musky action on Ballard, Irving, Trout, Big Palmer and Tanager lakes. Walleye fishing is reported fair on High, Repulse, Isle, Plum lakes and Big Arbor Vitae.

Wisconsin Rapids Area — Adams, Juneau, Wood and Portage counties — Fishing has been generally slow for all species, but should improve with the cooling-off of county waters.

NORTHWEST DISTRICT Brule Area — Bayfield and Douglas counties and the Apostle Islands — Fishing continues excellent for lake trout in the Apostle Islands, a number of 12 pounders were reported. The fish are 120 feet of water with the best areas south and east of Big Bay state park on Madeline Island. Walleye are doing very well on the St. Louis River, and northern pike are still active at the Wisconsin entry to Superior Harbor. Smallmouth bass are providing very good sport on Lake Owen, and there has been some walleye action in the Eau Claire County. Trout action Bayfield County has been generally fair with the recent rains.

Sawyer County — Musky action is good in most waters. The Chippewa flowage produced 30 and 25 pounders last week. Walleye fishing has been spotty but generally good with nightcrawlers for the best bait. Panfishing continues fair.

Park Falls Area Iron County — Good musky reports are coming in from Pine Island and Mercer lakes. Bass fishing is good on Wilson and French lakes, while lake trout are doing very well on the Saxon Harbor on Lake Superior.

Taylor County — Panfishing on Spirit Lake is reported good, as is the musky and northern action on the Mondak flowage. Most small lakes have good bass fishing, and blackberries are beginning to ripen throughout the area.

Ashland County — Musky fishing is picking up, and stream trout action is reported as good to very good. Large browns are being taken on the Bad River, and limits of brook trout are being taken throughout the area. Pan fishing is very good, especially in the evenings.

Marquette County — Nice catches of bluegills are being caught in Montello and Lawrence lakes. Fishing in deep water using worms has been best. Bass are hitting among Montello Lake's weedbeds, while trout fishing is good throughout the area on nightcrawlers.

Wausau County — Big Silver Lake is producing good catches of bluegill in 20 to 30 feet of water using worms for bait.

Green Lake County — Lake Puckaway

Owners Split on Indians' Bid to Play in New Orleans

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A proposal that would allow the Cleveland Indians to play 30 home games in the New Orleans Superdome beginning in 1974 apparently would not be approved by other American League clubs at the present time.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer said a survey of top executives of other clubs showed two who favored the proposal, four opposed and four undecided. Oakland owner Charles Finley was not reached for comment.

The Indians would need approval of nine of the 12 club owners to institute the plan.

Supporting the plan were Washington owner Bob Short and Kansas City general manager Cedric Tallis. Opposed were California General Manager Dick Walsh, Milwaukee President Bud Selig, Baltimore Vice President Harry Dalton and Boston General Manager Dick O'Connell.

Undecided were Lee McPhail, general manager of the New York Yankees; Calvin Griffith, president of Minnesota; Stu Holcomb, executive vice president of the Chicago White Sox, and Jim Campbell, general manager of Detroit.

The Indians' directors are to meet sometime before Oct. 8 to discuss the proposal and possibly vote on the issue.

The United States claimed the lead in the en's standings with a pressive total of 2,806. Adams of New York girls with 584.

Venezuela was second day's end with 2,700. The women's individual race was much closer, with 2,850 for 15 games.

McClain of Detroit was with 2,829 and Dixie Bur of Houston ranked third with 2,825.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE

Price Freeze: Impact on Farms

A Cow Carpet is installed in a Cleveland dairy barn. Francis Salm and a son, Nicky, cement indoor-outdoor carpeting to free-stalls in a new 62-by 132-foot dairy barn. The facility will have an eight-herringbone milking parlor and attached 20-by 20-foot milk house with 1,200 gallon bulk milk tank. Salm also is building a 24- by 80-foot silo. (Photo Special to The Post-Crescent)

Experiment at Cleveland

Would You Believe—A Cow Carpet!

CLEVELAND, Wis — When Francis Salm is finished with his new barn here his 125 Holsteins will have stall-to-stall carpeting.

It may be one of the poshest barns in the state.

If Salm is right he will like it, the cows will like it and it will save him money.

It all started when Salm decided to nearly double his 70-cow herd. He's got 125 cows now and the new barn will have 161 free stalls. But bedding was a problem.

Sawdust is a good bedding. But replacing sawdust in 161 stalls is a time-consuming chore. And although inexpensive the cost of such bedding can mount.

So Salm decided to check on indoor-outdoor carpeting for the stalls. He talked with Arthur Laehn, who sells carpets at Black Creek, and decided to gamble $1,200 that the system would work.

Now he's cemented 400 yards of carpet to stalls and is awaiting the verdict from his jury of Holsteins.

Carpet Comfort

Each of the cows has its 6-foot strip of carpet in a 6-foot 3-inch free stall. If the Holstein's don't notice the difference Salm says he will.

"It's a big saving in labor." Cleaning time alone saves from three to four hours each week. Carpeting is simply hosed clean with high-pressure jets of water — a job which previously cut into Salm's already crowded workday.

Salm says he isn't worried about the cost. "If it lasts five years I'll be ahead." He'll be satisfied if the carpets last only three years. In that time he'll break even on the plan.

Savings Possible

And the $1,200 outlay is far below the cost of rubber mats at from $30 to $40 per stall, says Salm.

If his cows aren't contented Salm says he will pitch sawdust atop the carpets — but this shouldn't prove necessary.

Carpets have worked in other places.

Near Clintonville Tri-Vet Farms Inc., has installed carpets in 32 calf pens. "I think it's the most wonderful thing that's come to dairying," says Harold Schinke, route 1, Clintonville, who manages the farm.

Soapsuds Light

He says the carpeting saves both time and money. "It's so much easier to move soap and water around than it is to move bedding."

Injuries to calves have dropped since carpeting has been installed. Pens now can be cleaned until "they look just like new." Odor has been less of a problem since carpeting has been installed.

But the cash bonus comes when the cost of bedding is saved. "Over a year's time that can be a pretty good saving," says Schinke.

Although Salm hasn't seen any cows in carpeted stalls he's optimistic about the innovation. "It's an interesting experiment," he says.

A 90-day price-wage-rent freeze announced by President Richard Nixon has caused repercussions throughout Wisconsin's dairy and livestock industries.

Although raw food products are exempt prices of processed foods have been frozen.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Philip Olson explained for The Post-Crescent how the price freeze will affect Wisconsin farmers and processors.

Q. Will prices for cheese and livestock products be frozen?

A. Cheese would definitely be processed and it would be under the freeze. Processed meat prices also are frozen.

Q. Is the price freeze on agricultural products mandatory?

A. Yes. There is no question about that.

Q. What is used to determine the "freeze," price?

A. A ceiling will be the higher of the highest price in the 30 days prior to Aug. 12 or the price on May 25, 1970.

Q. Could the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange, Green Bay, which establishes base prices for cheese continue to operate under a "frozen" price?

A. Within the limits set by ceilings the cheese market can trade.

Q. Since prices for raw milk are permitted to rise won't cheesemakers face a pinch in profits?

A. This could happen. Fluctuations in milk supplies could reduce profits of processors.

Q. Does a cheesemaker have any way to ease his problem?

A. I think we have to try to tighten our belts and hold the line wherever we can.

Q. Could a similar supply shortage cut into meat processors' profits?

A. If live hog or cattle prices tend to go up the processing plants could feel a pinch.

Q. Pork supplies normally follow a cycle. Will any price leverage be permitted here?

A. Because pork prices have fallen since May 25, 1970, they will be permitted to rise slightly to that level, allowing some fluctuation.

Q. Can there be any exemptions to the price freeze?

A. If there is a strong case for an exemption, the Office of Emergency Planning and the Cost of Living Council have the power to grant them.

Q. Do you anticipate such power being used?

A. This will not be the usual case. The government is not in the price-setting business.

Q. Could a refusal of cheesemakers to pay rising milk prices increase the amount of surplus products purchased by the Commodity Credit Corporation?

A. If a cheesemaker can't pay more than a farmer can get from CCC, I suppose there is going to be a tendency to sell to CCC. This is definitely not desired by the government but could be a logical step.

Q. Could the price freeze indirectly stabilize the prices farmers receive for milk and livestock?

A. When you start freezing the pasteurized milk and powder price that has quite an effect.

Ways-Means Head Dairy Expo Speaker

MADISON — Wisconsin farmers may get a dose of economic policy when Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark, speaks at the World Dairy Expo Man of the Year banquet at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 2 at the Dane County Coliseum.

Mills, chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, will be introduced by Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., the senior Republican on the committee. Byrnes is Wisconsin's Eighth District representative.

Mills, besides being chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, is the chairman of the House Committee on Committees and Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation.

A special reception planned by the state department of agriculture will be presented before the Man of the Year banquet.

The National Milk Producers Federation has purchased a share in the World Dairy Expo.

Calumet Soil Surveys to Aid Zoning, Farm Plans

CHILTON — Plans for a Calumet County soil survey, designed to aid zoning and farm production, will be pushed forward Monday as Ambrose Klingelhoest, state soil scientist, details planning schedules during a meeting at the county Soil Conservation Service office.

The survey is part of an accelerated Soil Conservation Service move to map soils in Calumet County. An estimated $13,000 has been allocated to pay the county share of mapping costs.

Speed Urged
"They'd like to get it done as soon as possible," said Bruno

Zucollo, Calumet County soil conservationist. Most counties in the state have requested a speed-up in service and are paying part of the cost of research, he said.

The project, to be outlined Monday, will be done by a team working on both Calumet and Manitowoc counties.

Reports on the counties may be finished within two years, said Zucollo. In Calumet County an estimated 60 per cent of the area has been mapped during early work on farm plans. "It's just a question of completing it," said Zucollo.

When mapping is completed reports will be correlated and a complete analysis of soils in each area will be available.

Landowners within the county will be able to determine the type of soils, best land use, and problems on their tracts by consulting maps.

"One of the biggest aids would be in making farm plans," said Zucollo. With detailed maps erosion control and drainage problems will easily be defined.

Erosion Combatted
The plans also can pinpoint lands which are endangered by erosion. Treatment of such areas can be closely defined by use of the soil survey.

County zoning officials also will be able to tell which areas are best for residential development by using the maps. "There are some types of soil in which a filter field just won't work," said Zucollo. In such areas sanitary septic systems for houses are unworkable.

Chilton has used existing soil surveys to determine which lands are best for industrial and residential development in city comprehensive planning.

County highway officials will be able to use the maps to determine where problem areas may develop. Gravel pits may be located during soil mapping and wildlife areas suitable for preservation may be identified.

Calumet Teachers Study Nature

CHILTON — Teachers took a turn at attending classes Wednesday and today. A new training project was started to help Calumet County teachers discuss conservation and land use.

Sessions involved tours of a 25- to 30-acre nature study area recently created near the Chilton Rendering Plant site two miles south of here along Short Road.

The tours are designed to show teachers how they can guide field trips for their classes. In past years the Soil Conservation Service, aided by other agencies, conducted field trips for youngsters to farms.

But the massive country trip has been discontinued because the number of youngsters participating grew "unwieldy," according to Bruno Zucollo, Calumet County soil conservationist.

Now plans to train teachers will be linked with information sheets showing where small tours can be conducted. The program is being coordinated through Charles Nickolai, Calumet County 4-H and youth agent, Dennis Hohfelder, Greenville, Department of Natural Resources forester, and Don Niendorf, Manitowoc, Soil Conservation Board area representative, participated in the tours.

Information Compiled
"We've prepared a regular booklet," said Zucollo, explaining that once teachers have visited the nature study area they will have detailed information to aid them in planning tours.

The training program was developed jointly by the agencies and school systems in Calumet County.

Eventually, said Zucollo, a nature museum could be developed on the nature study area which is owned by the county. At the present time, however, the 25-acre area will be developed. "This area is big enough so that this part we can continue developing on."

Calf Pneumonia Million Dollar Loss

MADISON — Pneumonia striking calves cost Wisconsin farmers from $5 to $6 million in 1970, according to Dr. A. F. Krohn, a diagnostician with the state agriculture department animal health laboratory.

A lack of proper farm management and failure to recognize the disease added to the deaths. Krohn said calf pneumonia caused one-third of the state's calf deaths. At least 9 per cent of the state's 2 million calves died last year.

"With one-third of these dying of pneumonia this means a $3 to $4 million loss to state farmers. Add to this the cost of treatment, loss of production, labor and the spread of pneumonia to surviving calves and there is a total loss of between $5 million and $6 million," he said.

Often farmers unaware of a problem follow poor management methods, said Dr. Gifford Jacobsen, a department veterinary diagnostician.

"This is really something that has been a problem for many years." Faulty ventilation, sanitation and improper nutrition often weaken calves, lowering their resistance to pneumonia.

When disease hit sometimes it is not recognized until severe lung damage occurs weakening calves, said Jacobsen.

Three incumbents on the pork industry committee of the National Live Stock and Meat Board have been re-elected, according to John D. Lane, Chicago, secretary of the pork industry committee.

Re-elected were, Gordon Cooper, Lambert, Miss.; Mrs. Paul McNutt, Iowa City, Iowa; and James Volk, Battle Creek, Neb. Cooper is serving as pork industry committee chairman.

Dairy Check-Off Dubbed Necessity

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Dairy farmers will find that deductions from their milk checks to finance advertising and research programs will become an inevitable necessity, the annual Midwest Regional Agricultural Outlook Conference heard Monday.

Prof. Truman F. Graf, University of Wisconsin agricultural economist, predicted ultimate approval of mandatory deductions from dairymen's checks, with the funds to be used for dairy advertising and promotion.

"As production continues to rise faster than consumption, the problem of increasing dairy product consumption, and particularly high fat items, will be one of the big ones for the dairy industry in coming years," Graf said.

"Producer checkoffs for dairy product promotion, advertising and new and improved product research under milk orders are a necessity and will likely become more numerous in the future," he said.

Graf said he believed competition from dairy substitutes would decline as farmers turn to more promotion and better merchandising to relieve the milk surplus.

Blight Increases Slowly In Wisconsin Corn Fields

MADISON — Southern Corn Leaf Blight has made slight increases in Wisconsin cornfields although damage is less severe than anticipated, according to state officials.

"We would think it would have been heavier," said John Reynolds, plant disease technician with the state agriculture department. Weather conditions have favored the spread of blight, he said.

Corn in low areas and valleys shows considerable deterioration, he said. Most of the damage has occurred in south central and southwestern counties such as Grant, Crawford and Rock counties where dew remaining in valleys promotes the infection.

Reynolds said plant pathologists have expressed doubt that husk lesions on corn beginning to dent will be of great significance. In most cases ear rot is not anticipated, he said.

Federal reports show blight has been discovered in Massachusetts and is present in 33 states.

Nebraska, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas and Michigan were listed as showing slight increases in blight levels.

Susceptible seed varieties are being hit by "rapid spread and severe infection," in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware.

Migrants Happy With Protest Results

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Migrants would enable state inspectors to enforce adequate housing standards. Sanchez said the state Senate has promised passage of the proposal.

—The Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations (DILHR) has established, effective immediately, a "strike force" to coordinate and direct the agency's inspection and enforcement efforts for low-income, disadvantaged persons. The problems of migrant workers will receive top priority.

"Strike Force"

—The Department of Administration has promised to appoint a Mexican-American to at least one more of the positions on the newly-created public careers program for disadvantaged persons.

—Atty. Gen. Robert Warren has said he would prosecute those people who fail to enforce state laws applying to itinerant farm workers.

—C. T. Wettengel of the Division of Personnel has agreed to name a Latin as one of the coordinators working on broadened employment opportunities for migrants in state service.

—The migrants have decided to file suit in U.S. District Court against one grower accused of using the state's "antitrespass" law against them. They hope the case will set a statewide precedent.

The Spanish-speaking workers contend the law is illegal as applied to migrants because it keeps persons trying to organize migrants out of their camps.

Sanchez also said that because his group "got what we wanted," they were dropping a law suit they filed earlier against the state DILHR.

"There has been nothing unrealistic about our demands," the soft-spoken leader remarked at the news conference where he summarized the Latin's achievements.

We just want justice applied to everybody. We want equal enforcement of the laws."

Sanchez thanked "everybody that cooperated with us while we were here—the departments, the assemblymen, and the people who gave us support."

His comments were often interrupted with applause and cheers of "bravo" by about 150 Mexican-Americans and other spectators attending the half-hour meeting.

Lucey's Staff Says Students Denied Dormitory Space

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Patrick Lucey's executive secretary claimed Thursday that University of Wisconsin housing officials are discouraging prospective students from applying for dormitory space.

A member of the governor's staff was told in one case that there were no rooms available, Richard Weening said, although his information showed there were vacancies.

Weening said the staff made a series of test calls after a student reported she had been told there was no dorm space.

The staff member who was told there were no rooms available, the governor's aide said, also was informed there was a waiting list of about 100 names. He said three other callers were advised there was temporary housing available from which students could later move to permanent student housing.

The director of UW residence halls, Lawrence Halle, said there appeared to be a misunderstanding.

"To our knowledge, we haven't turned anybody down," he said. "We expect to take care of everyone who has applied to now and those who will apply."

Several of the callers from the governor's staff did request

Bill Seeks to Abolish Welfare, DNR Boards

BY JOHN WYNGAARD Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — An evidently growing disenchantment with the state government bureaucratic establishment has led to the presentation under bipartisan sponsorship of a bill that would dismantle the two most important department policymaking boards and put their administrative chiefs under the direct control of the governor's office.

Newly introduced in the Senate and Assembly is a measure to abolish the boards of the state department of natural resources and the state department of health and social services.

Together they guide the work and set the rules for about 7,500 state officers and civil servants. The secretaries are veteran administrators Lester P. Voigt of natural resources, and Wilbur Schmidt of health and social services.

Both now serve indeterminate terms, at the pleasure of their respective boards.

The thrust of the reorganization measure apparently is to extend the principle of making major administrators directly responsible to the elected governor.

"single rooms, Weening said. And Halle said there are no such rooms available.

But the housing director said cancellations of early reservations will change the dorm situation "almost daily."

governor that was introduced by the Kelleit reorganization act of four years ago. Heads of the revenue, transportation administration and local affairs departments now are chosen by the governor and serve as long as he desires them.

Frequently such drastic organization changes are tossed into the legislative bill file by legislators as an expression of their exasperation or resentment.

But there are signs that the measure offered by four senators and 13 members of the Assembly has more significance. Several sources said that Democratic sponsors put their names to the bill as authors with the "silent consent" of Gov. Patrick J. Lucey.

Chief author is Sen. Ronald Parys of Milwaukee, a conservative Democrat. But he was joined by Sen. Reuben LaFave, Oconto Republican, and one of the most influential members of the upper house. Observers noted also that Rep. Harold Froehlich of Appleton, the Republican minority leader in the Assembly, and Rep. Herbert Grover of Shawano, assistant leader of the Assembly Democratic majority, signed as sponsors of the bill. Grover has been quarreling with DNR about some of its administrative rules.

Legalized Prostitution Bill to be Introduced

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Prostitution would be made legal in Wisconsin under a bill being readied for introduction in the Assembly by Rep. Lloyd Barbee, D-Milwaukee.

Prostitutes and their places of business would be licensed by the Department of Health and Social Services, which would establish health regulations for them, under Barbee's proposal.

Soliciting women to become prostitutes would remain illegal.

Barbee said Thursday he thought present statutes prohibiting prostitution were unwise and a restraint on free enterprise, but some state regulation is needed. Operating an unlicensed house of prostitution under his proposal would be punishable by a $5,000 fine or up to five years in prison.

A proposal authored by Barbee to repeal all statutes dealing with sex crimes between consenting adults has remained in an Assembly committee for over five months without any action on it.

Top Soviet Leaders Will Visit France

The same sources also said Wednesday that a delegation from Red China will also visit France in late September or early October, but the names of the Chinese visitors were not known.

Hardin Pushes Move to Disband USDA

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture

Secretary Clifford M. Hardin continues to speak out for the Nixon administration's plan to reorganize the executive branch, a move that would disband the Agriculture Department and spread its functions among four new departments.

Hardin told the Senate Government Operations Committee that the reorganization plan is part of a package offered by the administration which is aimed at correcting "serious weaknesses" in the workings of the federal government.

New Agency

The committee heard Hardin's testimony on a bill which would create a new Department of Natural Resources. Agencies such as the Forest Service, the Soil Conservation Service and parts of the Agricultural Research Service and Economic Research Service in USDA would be transferred to the proposed department.

Other agencies now in USDA would be spread among three other proposed departments: Economic Affairs, Community Development and Human Resources.

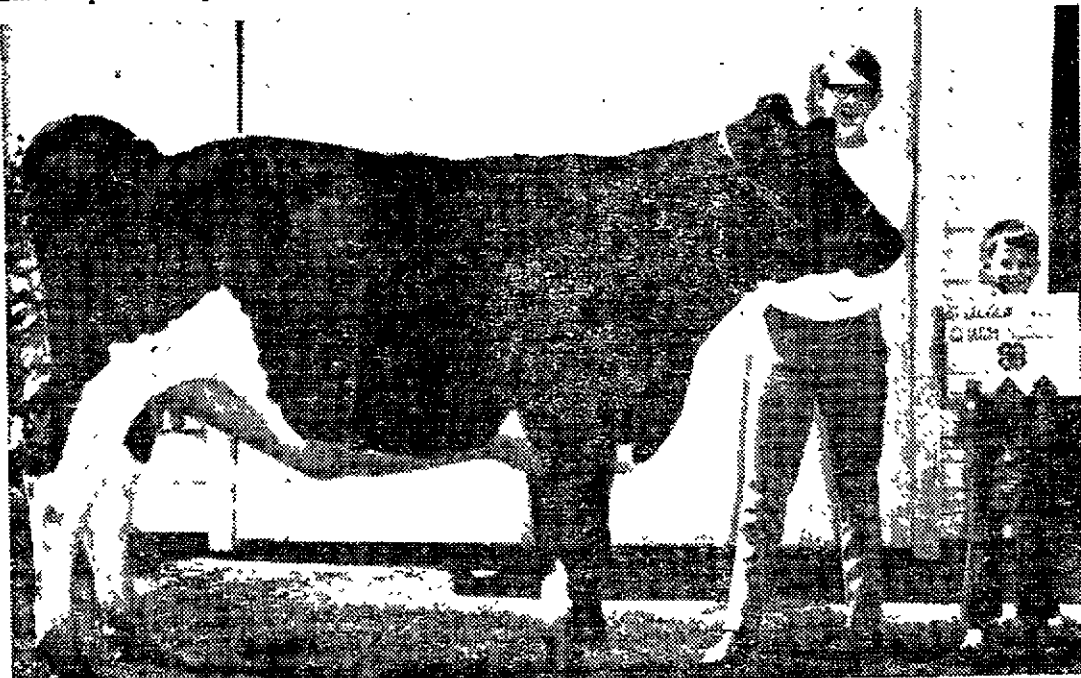

Efficiency Cited

"I encourage you to give favorable consideration to the entire plan, in order to obtain maximum benefits in improved efficiency, effectiveness and responsiveness in providing government services," Hardin said.

Hardin said the Agriculture Department already is "the most highly decentralized" department in the government because of its network of agencies at state and county levels. The reorganization plan, he said, would not mean reduced service to interests of agriculture.

"One of the basic principles followed in the proposed reorganization is that existing programs and delivery systems will remain intact under the new departments," Hardin said. "There would be no interruption of services at the point of contact with citizens, communities, farmers and ranchers."

Five Grand Champions at Winnebago Dairy Shows

OSHKOSH — Bright lights, thrill rides and country music blended here to make the Winnebago County Fair exciting — but for Winnebago County 4-H and Future Farmers of America members real excitement came when they entered the sawdust-covered ring competing for honors with dairy entries.

Five of the youngsters emerged from the judging ring with purple ribbons for grand championship honors.

The five were, Robert Weber, Mears 4-H Club, grand champion Holstein bull; Sarah Vander Heiden, Ridgeway 4-H Club, grand champion Holstein female; Esther Kruei, Gillingham 4-H Club, grand champion Guernsey female; Suzanne Jensen, Mears 4-H Club, grand champion Ayrshire female and Kenneth Stone, Lakeshore 4-H Club, grand champion Jersey female.

The dairy show drew an estimated 35 more entries this year than competed in 1970. "Our 4-H enrollment is up a little, so our potential is up some," said Clarence Westfahl, Winnebago County 4-H and youth agent.

Shows are limited somewhat by 4-H regulations which restrict members to entering a maximum of four projects, said Westfahl.

"One of the reasons for some of these limitations is space out there (at the fairgrounds)," he said. The entire junior fair drew an added 100 exhibitors this year, however.

Top blue ribbon winners in the contests were:

Tornadoes.

Only one instrument can positively identify them — the human eye. Use yours.

When your area receives a tornado watch, watch.

Watch for the deadly funnel that twists down from the thundercloud. Listen for its roar. If you see it or hear it — and if there is time — report it immediately to your nearest Weather Bureau or public safety office.

When your area receives a tornado warning, one has been seen. Your life may be at stake.

Take cover below ground level or in a strong building. Open a few windows, but stay away from glass. Curl up. Shield your head. If you are caught outdoors, lie flat in the nearest depression.

And move quickly. Seconds save lives.

Price Freeze Gets Grange Praise

WASHINGTON — Farmers will benefit from a 90-day wage-price-rent freeze ordered by President Richard Nixon, according to John Scott, master of the National Grange.

Cuts in inflation will boost farm profits, he said. "Farmers have been victims of inflation, not a contributing factor," said Scott. He said exempting raw farm products from the price freeze was "economically justified."

Production costs to farmers will be reduced or stabilized by the freeze, predicted Scott. "Due to inflation, production costs have constantly stayed three to four percentage points ahead of farm price increases, resulting in lower net farm income," said Scott. "The President's program, if given an opportunity to work, will halt inflation and farmers can look ahead to brighter days."

Scott praised Nixon's actions in a congratulatory letter to the President.

Nearly 5,000 Marchers head up New York's Fifth Avenue Thursday evening in the Women's March for Equality walk. After a confrontation with police, the leaders of the parade, mostly women, got the authorities to allow the march to use two traffic lanes of the four-lane thoroughfare. Originally, the walk was planned for the sidewalk. The march ended at a rally on Central Park Mall.

Women's Lib To be Seeking Political Power

Reveal Goal During
Marches, Rallies
Across Country

By The Associated Press

In their movement, women's liberation groups across the country have served notice that political power is their chief goal.

In marches and rallies, on banners and placards, in words of conciliation and fighting mad, women's liberationists marked the 51st anniversary of female suffrage Thursday with expressions of dissatisfaction at the pace of their progress toward equal rights.

While there was no shortage of vehemence, the day's major demonstration in New York drew an estimated 6,000 marchers. Last year, in the first big feminist street action in years, 20,000 paraded on Fifth Avenue.

Massing Numbers
Instead of massing large numbers of women this time, the liberation activists staged a series of small actions to spotlight their case.

A handful of women infiltrated the visitors' gallery of the American Stock Exchange with a banner reading "Women Power."

Floor traders looked up in surprise, breaking out in a crescendo of boos and a few cheers.

Shouting "De-sexagrate Wall Street!" and "We can't bear any more bull," the demonstrators were ejected. A spokesman for the exchange said trading was not affected.

Other women picketed the New York Stock Exchange. In both cases, they contended that women were excluded from the top jobs in the financial fraternity.

To complete the Wall Street action, activists invaded two restaurants they said discriminated against women. Bathed in television lights, they de-

N. Vietnam Kills 5 Americans in Raid

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese troops assaulted two U.S. armored cavalry patrols south of Da Nang Thursday and killed five Americans in one of the attacks. It was one of the heaviest U.S. losses in months.

Twelve other Americans were wounded, three armored vehicles were destroyed and a fourth was damaged. Enemy losses were not known.

One patrol from the Americal division was hit 16 miles south of Da Nang shortly after it camped for the night. The North Vietnamese attacked with rocket-grenades, machine guns and rifles.

This Attack
It was in this attack that the five Americans were killed and seven were wounded. The steel-piercing grenades destroyed two armored personnel carriers and a Sheridan tank before rocket-firing U.S. helicopters and artillery broke up the attack.

The American toll five dead was half the number killed last week, according to the U.S. Command casualty summary issued Thursday. Other such losses recently included five U.S. troops killed in an ambush Aug. 5, also south of Da Nang, and seven killed Aug. 12 when their helicopter was shot down near the demilitarized zone.

Fourteen miles to the south, North Vietnamese troops made a similar attack earlier in the day on another armored patrol. Five Americans were wounded and another personnel carrier was damaged.

Thieu was required to get only 40 signatures from national assemblymen or 100 from provincial and city councilors, but he wound up with endorsements in connection with 87 deputies, 15 senators and 452 councilmen.

—The Supreme Court could not explain its reasoning last week in invalidating some endorsements on Thieu's ticket and validating them on Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky's ticket when it had refused to do so only a few days before. Japan Plans To Float Yen

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's new economic program won a major victory in the foreign exchange market today as administration officials continued attempts to woo labor support for its domestic policies.

The Japanese government announced it will let the yen float on the foreign exchange market beginning Saturday. The yen had been a major target of the import portion of Nixon's program.

The Japanese action is expected to improve the U.S. balance of trade and came a day after the Commerce Department announced a trade deficit in July for the fourth consecutive month.

The U.S. Treasury issued a brief statement saying: "We welcome the decision of Japan as a further step toward a more realistic realignment of international exchange rates which the President envisioned in his address to the nation."

Gold Standard
After Nixon announced Aug. 15 the suspension of the gold standard and the imposition of the 10 per cent import surcharge, the Japanese government attempted to hold the yen to a parity of 360 to the dollar. It said today's action, allowing the yen to find its own rate according to the demand and supply, would be temporary.

Earlier, the administration, in a peace-making meeting with AFL-CIO President George Meany, guaranteed organized labor a role in determining what will follow the domestic 90-day wage-price freeze.

Five Candidates
—In Da Nang, five candidates were refused permission to talk on the radio. After intervention by the committee, they were allowed to go to the radio station but were told they could not broadcast because of a "technical failure."

—Also in Da Nang, a candidate was stoned when he appeared before a group of voters, and the stoning was organized by a captain from the army's political warfare section.

Ky meanwhile sent a communique to the Supreme Court of officially informing it of his decision on Aug. 23 not to participate in the election or to campaign, even though the court has put his name back on the ballot.

What is to follow the freeze has become a dominant question for economic planners. And the Meany-Hodgson meeting was significant because of the labor chief's heavy criticism of President Nixon's new economic program.

Walk in Valley

DALLAS (AP) — "It was 114 degrees at 2 a.m., and the wind was blowing about 30 miles an hour."

"It pushes you back. You're going forward and it pushes you back. Your mouth really gets dry."

Viki Pochciol, a slender 19-year-old blonde, was describing her recent hike of the 147-mile length of Death Valley in five days.

"Seven men have crossed it the way we went," she said Thursday. "I am the first woman to cross it, and that is more or less an official record."

Photographer Partner
They were accompanied by George Sevra, 24, a Dallas photographer. Sevra drove a jeep and trailer with supplies.

"He'd drive on about two or three miles ahead of us," said Viki, "and we'd stop at the jeep to get water and rest."

"We traveled at night and daytime, more or less in the evening, the majority of it in the evening," Viki recalls. "At first we'd go for 16 miles and sleep for four hours during the night."

"Mr. Meany's response was to give us a good hearing and showing great concern about many aspects of the problems the freeze was causing, and that he hoped we would recognize those problems."

Secretary James D. Hodgson said after Thursday's session with Meany.

Asst. Labor Secretary W. J. Usery met briefly with federal secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland, apparently laying the groundwork for the Hodgson-Meany talk.

What is to follow the freeze has become a dominant question for economic planners. And the Meany-Hodgson meeting was significant because of the labor chief's heavy criticism of President Nixon's new economic program.

Last week the United States, for the first time since World War II, told a foreign country—Ireland—that its airline will lose its lucrative New York stop unless U.S. carriers get a better break in Ireland.

Now U.S. negotiators are bargaining rigorously with Australians, seeking to boost American air traffic to that country. Meanwhile, Washington has piggybacked a bid by Australia's air carrier, Qantas, to step up its service to the United States.

So Unhappy
The Belgians are so unhappy about a U.S. refusal to allow their airline, Sabena, to fly to U.S. points beyond New York that they have talked about canceling their air agreement with the United States.

A Belgian negotiating team is due here next month—but U.S. officials say they won't give in. A similar meeting with Venezuela negotiators is scheduled for October.

France, West Germany and Canada also want to fly more throughout the United States but U.S. authorities say economic conditions at this time bar granting foreigners more routes to U.S. cities.

Officials say the U.S. attitude began stiffening about a year ago when it became apparent that U.S. international airlines were piling up large financial losses. Nixon's new economic policy announcement Aug. 15 poured hardening cement into the U.S. negotiating posture.

They covered the last 40 miles in one stretch, she said, starting out at 6 a.m. and arriving at Scotty's Castle at 9:35 p.m. Aug. 21.

Tremendously Tired
"I got tremendously tired because the wind was blowing in our faces," Viki said.

The Pochciols trained for the hike by running and walking as much as 30 miles a day for five months before the trip.

On their trip through the valley they carried a thermometer which hit a high of 125 degrees and a low of 98.

Describing their reasons for the trip as "a personal achievement," Viki said she lost 10 pounds, her husband nearly 15.

"At nighttime it's actually harder than at daytime, because at daytime you can see where you're going," she said.

"At night all you can see is the flashlight and the stars. It's like you're down in a big hole and all around you all you can see is big peaks."

"It kind of puts you to sleep. I'd rather put up with the heat in the day, because you feel you are going somewhere."

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. flights into New York, Boston and Chicago.

In ensuing years the increasing range of airlines shrunk Shannon's importance as a fuel stop, even as Irish International Airlines nurtured a thriving business to the three U.S. cities—earning three times as much from the route as its U.S. competitors—Pan American Airways, Trans World Airlines and Seaboard World Airlines.

Yet for 25 years the Irish rebuffed U.S. requests to let U.S. airlines fly into Dublin, the capital. The Irish say they want to continue Shannon as their international airport as a way of promoting economic development in eastern Ireland.

Two Killed in Ammunition Plant Blast

RADFORD, Va. (AP) — Two workers were killed in an explosion at the Radford Army Ammunition Plant today, almost a year to the day after a similar blast killed two other employees.

Cause of today's explosion was not known. Nor was the cause ever determined of the blast a year ago.

Debris from the building was hurled several hundred feet, and the explosion was felt four miles from the plant.

Four Hurt
Four other men suffered minor injuries.

The two men who were killed were working in the preblending operation inside the building at the time of the blast.

In the preblending process, buggies carrying raw material from other parts of the plant are positioned manually and the remainder of the operation is carried out by remote control from a blockhouse.

Same Structure
The building was identical to and located several thousand feet from the one in which last year's explosion occurred Aug. 28.

The building involved in today's blast was used for test purposes during the investigation of the first explosion.

Ambitious Plan for Plamann Revealed

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A summer zoo, an 18-hole golf course and a group camping area are included in preliminary master plans for the development of Plamann Park, submitted Thursday night to the Outagamie County Board's Public Property and Parks Committee.

The plans were drawn by Dega and Stuka Associates of Madison which was retained by the county early this year.

Hugh Dega, a partner in the Madison firm, said the county might want to consider projecting the proposed park development over the next five to 10 years.

The following features are contained in the preliminary development plans discussed Thursday:

- An 18-hole, 115-acre golf course along the west section of the 252-acre park. Two ponds, of 1½ and 3½ acres, are included in the golf course drawing.

Summer Zoo

• A summer zoo containing a wide range of animals, both native and otherwise. The zoo would be in the northeast section of the park, fronting on Broadway Drive. Dega told supervisors of a similar zoo recently opened in Madison.

• A large, active sports area to include facilities for softball, baseball, tennis, basketball, soccer and football. The active sports area would lie adjacent to the east edge of the golf course.

• Several picnic areas which would include a two-acre pond.

• A nature area that would form a belt through much of the center of the park. A park overlook would be situated near the nature area.

• A swimming and skating area.

• Facilities for group camping at the south central portion of the park. Dega said that if individual campsites are developed, the county could experience a problem of overuse by transients.

• A winter sports area near the center of the park.

• Several large parking areas and a maintenance-service section.

Traffic Pattern

Dega told committeemen the first thing they should consider is changing the park traffic pattern to allow for a single entrance-exit area on Broadway Drive at the north end of the development. There now are several roads leading into the park.

Dega said there are portions of the park that do not get much visitor use because of the existing through-traffic pattern.

Dead-ending of the roads in some park areas, Dega explained, would result in increased use of some park areas.

Dega said that although his firm had not yet devised a timetable for development of the park just north of Appleton, supervisors should consider early construction of parking lots and a zoo and more year-around activities.

Low Priority

Although the golf course is a major element of the design, Dega remarked, it is not a high priority item for early development. He said the topography lends itself well to a golf course.

And, he continued, "there is considerable demand for golf courses now and in the future in this area," even though plans are being made for a large, privately developed course. "It is not unique for counties to be in the golf course business," Dega explained.

Charles Hervey, executive director of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission agreed that a golf course is needed, but he cautioned that it would involve "a tremendous expenditure" ($450,000 was mentioned) and at present no state or federal recreational funds being granted for golf course development in Wisconsin.

Dega suggested that consideration also be given to a natural amphitheater in the park. He also proposed a central shelter facility on a high spot in the middle of the park.

Definite Plans

County Executive Alvin E. Woehler urged the committee to get a definite master plan that would specify the number of years and the number of dollars needed for the development before requesting any county funds.

"I probably would throw it out under present economic situation," Woehler said, but he told committeemen that if they devised a thorough economic plan along with a set master plan, he would lend his assistance.

Supv. Nick Karras of Appleton, parks committee chairman, said the plans presented Thursday were "just for discussion." He believed that a public hearing would have to precede final action on a master plan.

The county recently more than doubled the size of Plamann Park with a 143-acre purchase of land, partially paid for with state and federal monies.

No More All-Girl School for Marisol

CHILTON — Marisol Urbeana Korrea, a pretty, raven-haired girl from Valdivia, Chili, has settled in for a year's stay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Schaub, her new American "parents."

Marisol, 17, is this city's American Field Service student. She arrived here Aug. 13 and was greeted by her new parents and Debbie, 17, a senior at

All-Girl School

School for Marisol this year will be a little different than what she is used to in Valdivia. There she attended an all-girl school for half days six days a week. "I started kindergarten with boys and end my last year of school with boys," she said. The other half of the day was spent in school activities, studying or getting together with friends. She has spent five years studying English and four years learning French.

Among her hobbies are knitting, reading, horseback riding, theater and playing billiards. She was active in volleyball and has been captain of her team for a number of seasons.

"I love American music," Marisol said. "It is like an expression of youth." The dancing, she said, is similar to the bossa nova.

She has developed a fondness for American food, which is similar to some Chilean foods, but is afraid her American mother's good cooking will cause her to "get much gorda (fat)."

Copper Industry

Marisol's hometown is rainy and surrounded by many small lakes. She said the city is clean and the lakes are unpolluted, even though the copper industry makes up 70 per cent of the economy, followed closely by the lumber industry.

Approximately 100,000 people live in Valdivia, which is frequented by tourists.

Technical universities in and near the city specialize in either personally or through an agent, after Dist. Atty. Gerald K. Anderson's request that this be a condition of the bond.

Anderson told the court that Walter Edgar Jr. would be a witness for the state.

Edgar appeared in court Thursday on his own volition with attorney John Englund, Iron River, Mich. The Outagamie and Waupaca county sheriff departments recovered an estimated $14,000 in goods last week and alleged to be in Edgar's possession, which were stolen last January in Appleton and Manawa.

Schools Open Monday

Waupaca Teachers Ready for Classes

WAUPACA — Teachers in the Unified School District reported for two days of orientation and inservice session Thursday, and the 1,998 students will report for their classes on Monday.

The 37 elementary teachers heard Dr. Roger L. Wood, department of education, Stevens Point State University, in a film lecture on new horizons in teaching elementary science.

He described a small group of elementary children, preferably eight, as an outstanding self-paced instructional program. "It allows the child to observe, explore, do something, interact with the other students and evaluate his own work," he said.

"In this kind of group the child can feel he is a part of the learning process. He finds it exciting and he makes all kinds of discoveries. School just is not a bore."

Pilot Programs

During the coming school year there will be a number of pilot programs in the elementary grades, based on small group and individualized instruction. The administration said.

Mrs. Eunice Gruel, Mrs. Hatie Jome and Mrs. Beth Johnson conducted workshops on individualized instruction at the primary, intermediate and upper grade levels. They attended a seminar on individualized instruction at Minneapolis, Minn. this summer and used the workshop technique to acquaint those teachers on the elementary staff with the methods they had learned.

"Individualized instruction multiplies the opportunities for both pupil and teacher to interact and there are a variety of things which take place in the learning process, one teacher told her group at Westwood Elementary School.

"The student is actively involved in the learning process in a small group — he cannot be ignored and he cannot get lost as a passive listener, but he can go along at his individual pace."

Variety of Roles

"On this almost one-to-one basis the teacher also can function in a variety of roles. She will be a lecturer, but also a worker, a committee chairman, a tutor and can present materials in an endless variety of ways. No longer will she have to force all students into a single learning mold."

Mrs. Phyllis Hunt, Title I instructor, held a session on the detection and remediation of learning disabilities in the primary grades.

Junior High

The 20 junior high school teachers met with Principal Robert Groshek to discuss class structure, class schedules, the testing program, techniques for observation, audiovisual aids and new teaching innovations.

Principal Clarence Riddle met with the 36 high school teachers to discuss new and old policies and chairmen of the English, mathematics, music, science, social studies and vocational educational departments presented curricula for the new year.

Friday the teachers will ready their classrooms for the opening day of school and Supt. Len Brittelli will meet with the staff late Friday afternoon to go over budgetary matters.

NEW LONDON — A head-on collision on County D south of here Thursday night resulted in the death of Earl L. Kempka, 54, of Columbus.

Kempka died at 8:10 a.m. today at New London Community Hospital from severe head injuries.

Kempka was driving south on D 3½ miles south of here at 7:45 p.m. when his car crossed into the northbound lane and crashed into a car driven by Leonard J. Lippert, 73, of Median, according to the Wisconsin State Patrol.

Lippert was hospitalized with cuts to his head and legs, and his wife Lucile, 65, suffered a broken collar bone and face cuts. Both were listed in fair condition this morning at Community Hospital.

Arson Suspected in St. Nazianz Barn Fire

ST. NAZIANZ — Arson is the suspected cause of a spectacular fire that destroyed a barn and damaged three other buildings in the village early Thursday.

Earl A. Schwabe of Green Bay, a deputy state fire marshal, was called in to head an investigation of the blaze. The investigation is expected to extend into the weekend. Local fire authorities and the Manitowish County Sheriff's Department are assisting him.

The 28-by-100 foot barn on Main St. County Trunk C had been used by owner Dan Goesse of St. Nazianz, to store two antique cars, two trucks and other equipment.

Village Fire Chief Rembert Broecker said Thursday he thought the blaze had been caused by a minor explosion, such as a firecracker. He said he was awakened about 2:30 a.m. by the explosion at the barn about a half block from his home.

The barn was a mass of flames within moments, he said. About 100 firemen from here, Kiel, Valders, and the Town of Newton fought the blaze.

The Meyer Supper Club and John Miller Implement Co. buildings across the street were scorched and a garage near the barn was heavily damaged. The barn was a total loss, but there was no estimate of damages. Residents doused minor roof fires caused by sparks with garden hoses.

School Budget Up; Taxes Down

WAUPACA — The Waupaca school districts is the fact that the State Legislature has not passed a budget for the next biennium. Supt. Len Brittelli made prior to the third Monday in October as the Wisconsin Statutes provide.

Before going through the new budget item by item, the superintendent explained that principals, teachers and the administration submitted estimates of budgetary needs, itemized and priced in detail.

Amended and Deleted He said that some of the requested items have been amended and some deleted from the budget, and he added, "the budget we have here is a statement of educational and fiscal policy."

Total receipt for next year will be derived in the amount of $1,569,206 through the tax levy of $977,765; general state aids of $450,000, and estimated receipts of $141,441, which include vocational aids of $52,000; transportation aids of $30,191; county aid of $19,250; and other revenue tax. For every dollar to be the base remain at its current level of $43,500, an adjustment in the tax levy and rate will be education aids, common school from city taxes; 26 cents will come from township taxes, 28.7 cents will come from state aids and 8.9 cents will come from other receipts.

Lions Share Instruction costs take the lion's share of the dollar, calling for 68 cents of each dollar to cover estimated expenditures for instruction of $1,066,182.

Instruction includes those activities dealing directly with, or aiding in, the teaching of students or improving the quality of instruction, as well as pupil recreation activities. This account shows an increase of 3.9 per cent and the teachers and board have not yet signed a contract for 1971-72.

Salaries are the biggest item and next year's budget calls for the superintendent's salary of $20,000; three principals, raised for school purposes $45,500; 36 full-time and one half-comes from the district proper.

The 14.7 mill tax rate for the coming year based on $66,515, 100 total equalized valuation of the district, shows that $410,167, or 41.9 per cent of the property tax will be paid by the City of Waupaca, and the balance of $567,598, or 58.1 per cent, will be paid by the townships.

The Town of Farmington's taxpayers will contribute $225,200; the Town of Dayton, $153,501; the Town of Waupaca, $99,716; the Town of Lind, $48,808; the Town of Scandinavia, $12,357; the Town of Lanark, $10,319; the Town of Belmont, $9,027; the Town of Lawrence, $6,871 and the Town of Saxeville, $2,250.

Summarily, this means, that 62 per cent of the money to be raised for school purposes $45,500; 36 full-time and one half-comes from the district proper.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The urban municipal interest of the state has won a surprisingly decisive victory in the ancient dispute about the rights of persons in annexation to the parent city for all purposes.

On a 79-15 roll call vote, the Wisconsin Assembly Thursday passed a senate-approved bill, as it would restrict the state Department of Natural Resources in offering the extension of sewerage services beyond the limits of the city.

The measure which now goes to Gov. Patrick J. Lucey for his disapproval or approval would permit cities to call for annexation in such situations if they chose to do so, and nullify a service extension order of the state agency if annexation is refused by the non-urban district involved.

Towns Opposed
The towns lobby opposed the bill, as it opposes many of the major proposals of the larger cities on territorial annexation matters.

But legislators involved in the fight said that a latent antagonism toward DNR, exhibited on many other issues lately, was more important in delivering the victory to the League of Municipalities.

The issue of sewer service without annexation grew controversial recently with a "non-proliferation" policy of the state agency in approving construction of sewage disposal plants and in administering state and federal aids for construction of such facilities. The policy is intended to discourage numerous local plants at comparatively high cost, in favor of regional installations.

Amendment Lost
One of the surprising developments in the floor argument in the assembly was the offering of a crippling amendment to the bill by Rep. Norman Anderson of Madison. Democratic majority leader Anderson got only a handful of votes for his amendment. Normally he is one of the leaders of causes of the urban interests. Political sources said he was probably acting on behalf of DNR.

The most steadfast champions of rural government resisted the measure to the end.

"This is nothing but forced annexation", protested Rep. Ervin Conrad of Shiocton, one of the leaders of the rural town bloc spokesmen.

The League told legislators the virtually all of the cities and villages ordered to accept the sewage of adjacent town sanitary districts are vigorously opposing such demands, "because they are placed in the difficult position when they may later seek annexation of this territory for all purposes."

With sewage service extended, they could ignore proposals for annexation with impunity, the League explained.

Officials plan to welcome the youngsters to the hall Monday as originally scheduled. Allowing children from the public school to attend classes in the hall, town and village officials said, would involve children living outside the village.

Rescue Crew Will Tow Stranded Steam Crane

WRIGHTSTOWN — A big, day a North Western switch steam-powered crane that a crew will bring the crane and week ago was sidetracked here on its way to the National Railroad Museum in Green Bay. Saturday morning will complete its trip Saturday — but not on its own.

A special operating crew started from Appleton last Sunday afternoon, intending to guide the crane to the museum before 9 p.m.

They were counting on the crane reaching speeds of about seven miles per hour. But the wind blew and the boiler grates clogged and the coals wouldn't get hot enough, so there wasn't enough steam to push the crane more than about four miles per hour.

Couldn't Make It
The Chicago and North Western Railway Co. granted the railroad museum the use of its tanks, but only until 9 p.m. last Sunday. Crew men, realizing they couldn't make it to Green Bay, abandoned the crane, along with a gondola bearing

Arrangements have been made here for the special education class to receive art, physical education and music instruction from the public school teachers. Furniture and a blackboard have been installed at the community hall and town and village officials were engaging a janitor.

Though no formal vote was taken at the three-board meeting late Thursday, several Stockbridge officials were very vocal in their expressions of lack of consideration by the State Department of Public Instruction and inability to settle the confusion a day ahead of school opening.

They said they would adhere to the state's original direction that the youngsters attend classes at the new community hall Monday.

time, department heads and substitute teachers in elementary schools, $354,132; 20 full time, substitute and extra-curricular teachers, in junior high school, $182,218; and 36 teachers, department heads, substitute teachers, non-athletic extra-curricular instructors and summer work, high school, $366,746.

There are eight and "one-half" secretaries and clerks with salaries totaling $35,065; nine full time and five part-time custodians; 10 part time crossing guards; and playground supervisors with salaries totaling $78,000; and one full time bus supervisor and 18 bus drivers with salaries of $44,000.

Fringe Benefits
Fringe benefits total $63,500, with $29,500 being paid by the board for Wisconsin Physicians Service (health insurance); $24,000 being paid for teachers, shows the greatest decrease, retirement and $10,000 being paid in Social Security benefits.

Fixed charges is another account which reflects a major increase, with a total of $79,300, eling account. Most major re-up $33,800 from the 1970-71 modeling work has been completed, other than maintenance count are interest on short term of the gymnasium floor and a loans, increases in social security, nominal appropriation yearly, it is believed, will meet the needs proper placement for all school student insurance in this account.

The athletic account has been nance increased from a $2,000 appropriation last year to $15,000 in 1971-72. This represents the difference between the total cost of the program of $23,000 and the actual receipts of $8,000 experienced.

Other accounts showing small increases are: $960 for administration; and $3,300 for operation.

Sizeable Decreases:
—The transportation account shows a decrease of $6,550 in its $78,450 total. The paramount reason for the decrease is the board's plan to purchase one, rather than two new school buses.

—The debt service account will decrease $7,980 in its $79,250 total. The major reason is the payment of $10,000 of the principal on a long term note. This account also shows that the rental of non-school property has increased $6,000 over a year ago.

—The capital outlay account shows the greatest decrease, $22,020, as compared with last year's $67,500. The major reason for the decrease is the $20,000 difference in the remodeling work has been completed.

Other accounts showing small decreases are $1,100 for health services and $671 for maintenance

The Nixon-Hirohito Meeting

President Nixon's decision to fly to Alaska and greet the Emperor and Empress of Japan on their final voyage to a flight to Europe reflects his right. The Japanese were deeply hurt having been so humiliated before Mr. Nixon made his first recent visit where the government is being.

The Emperor of Japan is what seemed to be a turning of the government of President Nixon and his policies to a new era of relations with the United States. It is a time of opportunity for some is understandable. In the first place the Japanese believe in the economic growth of the country. Even when the peace in Indo China, Hawaii were being developed, relations between Japanese, Chinese and Americans in Washington were cordial and not only to cover up the Japanese attack. Extreme courtesy is a way of life to the Japanese.

But there have been other signs of disturbance developing in the relations between Washington and Tokyo in recent years. The demands for the return of Okinawa still seemed in controversy, were firm and have government very likely would have fallen. When the American agreement Japan has resisted voluntary controls or its exports to the United States particularly in the area of textiles. The trade with Australia has continued to grow and thereby so that it probably is Australia's largest trading partner. Its economic influence on most of Asia is considerable.

And one of these days its military forces may follow that influence if only to add protection to it. This is particularly likely as the Japanese increase their military forces and come to rely less upon the mutual defense treaty with the United States which has spread the protection of their interests over Japan during its developing years since the end of World War II.

However, the new contacts between Washington and Peking have aroused concern in Japan that its deeper than what has been a mere political interest in the Chinese Communist Party is a reality. The major competition to Japanese influence in the East is the People's Republic of China. Increased trade and diplomatic relations between the United States and China are bound to have an effect upon Japan's future role. Since President Nixon's change in American economic policy, including the 10 per cent surcharge upon imports, the concerns have probably increased.

There is a last time around of what is accompanying President Nixon's trip to Alaska. A Japanese Emperor has never visited the United States. American Presidents seldom have. Washington to greet over heads of state and none has ever met any Emperor of Japan. The meeting should at least help to ease tentative relations though it is unlikely to solve the deeper problems of trade and defense that must be worked on by other levels of government.

But as a side note it is somewhat fascinating to reflect what would have been the response of any American or Japanese in 1945 had someone predicted that Emperor Hirohito and the President of the United States would meet for friendly, social and diplomatic reasons in Asia 25 years later.

Interest in Pornography Fading

It is rather an interesting commentary on human behavior to find out that as almost all restrictions have been removed from films and literature, the interest in hard core pornography has declined.

At least that interpretation comes from statistics gathered by Stephen Grover for the Wall Street Journal. To most of us, surprised by the advertisements, the explicit sexual details in films not even rated X, the constant hassles over what inch or so of clothing must do some covering in local girls shows, an indication that perhaps the financial benefits from the exploitation of sex and violence is waning is good news.

It seems it is true. New York theaters dealing exclusively in skin flicks have reported as much as a 70 per cent decline in the last two months. The summer may be part of the reason as few of these cheap theaters are air-conditioned. But at least one owner concedes that "our customers got tired of seeing the same thing week after week." As the film center in England said when announcing his retirement, sex is a fascinating business but not to watch over and over again.

Another reason for some disillusionment in the business seems to be the cost of maintaining or establishing its legality. Alex De Renz, who has produced several explicit films which he chooses to differentiate from the "trash," agrees that one of his films, which cost only about $100,000 to make, grossed more than $1 million. But legal cost to get it shown ate up the profits. And even after court decisions have established the right of the film to be shown, local authorities make trouble that costs more money. Cutbacks in profits from the earlier pornographic magazines may also have resulted from competition as the number of such publications, some of them lasting only a month or so, increased.

But the real reason for the drop in the trade seems to be simple boredom. Earlier surveys showed that the major customers of porno bookstores and skin flicks were respectable appearing middle-aged men.

One disgruntled book store owner in New York, noting that the stores are supposed to cater to adults only said they might as well have signs saying "no one under the age of 31 admitted". The kids aren't interested. In Denmark, the highly publicized International Porno Fair which two years ago drew 48,000 paying customers as the last of Denmark's obscenity laws disappeared this year attracted only 4,500 people and lost at least $75,000. The clinical aspects of sex simply aren't that interesting over and over again.

Meanwhile in the United States the rating system of the motion picture industry continues to raise criticism. It has been obvious that some pressure from film makers has changed ratings so as to keep the companies in business and has little to do with protecting the morals of the public. The decrease in interest in hard-core pornography might indicate that all restrictions should be removed except that we do not know the effect of such material upon children.

Perhaps the explicit sex or nudity is not nearly as damaging as the violence — and the rating authorities have tended to ignore this aspect just as much as the American public ignores it. As long as John Wayne keeps his pants on and says only "darn" he can blow bloody brains out of every Indian he wants. Defenders of such liberty argue that children see such action as fantasy or fiction anyway and point to the violence in Snow White and the Three Trolls. But it is clear that the rating system is not a success. No one has yet come up with anything to take its place.

According to most Supreme Court decisions and often those of lower courts, probably almost anything on film or in publications or even in live shows should be open to adults. But at what age should tighter restrictions be enforced and when will they merely whet the appetite of the young for the prohibited material as they do today as far as beer and hard liquor are concerned?

Dairy Farmer Answers Letter About Levy for MAPP Program

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

I have noticed in your Sunday edition, that Sr. Thomas More is again indulging in her favorite pastime, that of telling the farmer how to manage his affairs. May I say "thank you" at least for not referring to her as a "noted farm authority" as some papers do.

There are a few things, apparently, that Sr. More is not aware of. Many of us who disagree with the MAPP program might not be so, were it not for the underhanded method which was used to force this program onto the farmers, through an income tax!

In July of 1969, Bill 1006 was introduced into the legislature by Assemblymen Nuttelman, O'Malley, Lewison, Laper and Vanderperren. This bill changed the two-thirds vote needed for passage of a referendum to 51 per cent. Maybe the people who sponsored this bill thought, that through "block voting," this program could be passed on to the producer without a murmur!

In examining the legislative record, we find that, when hearings were held on this bill, the dairy farmer was conspicuous by his absence to speak either for or against it. But out in full force were the spokesmen for the co-operatives, to speak for passage of the bill. Also present was a Mr. J. D. Koss, speaking for the concerned committee for cheese plants!

Since the cheesemakers had voted against this program some time before, it seems strange that they could send a representative to speak for the farmers paying the cost of this MAPP program. Does Sr. More know of this underhanded method used to force this program onto the milk producer?

We realize as Sr. More says, that all businesses must advertise, but she fails to mention that the cost of the advertising is passed to the consumer in the cost of the finished product. We as farmers, produce a raw product which is packaged under a brand name. Who are we going to pass this advertising cost to? The processor is the only one who can regain this cost, since the profits derived from this advertising, unfortunately, never seem to reach the farmer.

Sr. More also says, we must trust the "farmers" who are promoting the MAPP program. Who comprises the membership list of the Wisconsin Dairy Federation? Is it the farmer himself, or the co-op managers? I realize that they (the managers) consider themselves the spokesmen for the farmer, through the privilege of the block vote, granted to them by state law. Isn't the farmer entitled to do his own voting, or are we already voting by Communist methods?

Sr. More admits she has no practical experience on a farm, and she desires none. Why then, does she consider herself in a position to tell the dairy farmer how to manage his business? If I were to read a given number of top notch books on the fine arts of teaching, would it qualify me to enter Sr. More's classroom and tell her how to teach?

Vandals Chop Down Trees in Park Area

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

May we post notice to those using our ravine property bounded by Bellare Park and Nawada Court. We spent the better part of the weekend cleaning up the creek formed by the storm sewer at the edge of our land. Today, Tuesday, Aug. 24, some one or ones have chopped down small trees, and strewn the trash from the barrels back into the creek.

There is broken glass, rusty metal, and other debris now in the water. To add to the damage the clay was brought up the ravine and thrown onto our back window and screen. We have always welcomed the many children who play in our "wilderness" but, must now post signs warning them away. It is a sad state when, with all the ecology information provided, there are some who would deliberately destroy and litter.

Another comment: To the youngster who walked off with our son's fielders glove on Monday night, Aug. 23, at Pierce Park. Please return the left-handed glove with A. Haynes on it; just turn it in at the Recreation department or the Y main desk, so he may have it back. A 5-year-old doesn't understand dishonesty, but give him a chance, you've provided quite a lesson.

Public Becoming Ecology Minded in Highway Planning

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Perhaps ecology has quite as effectively illustrated the impact of the awakened ecological conscience of the public as the revolution against the highway. Builders so traditionally manifested in Gov. Patrick's highway program intervention in the planning of the newly-authorized interstate highway link between Milwaukee and Green Bay.

Always before, the state and local builders could attract the attention of constituents with a better roads speech.

Today, it is apparent that he can attract more notice and appreciation by intervening against major highway construction in some instances which is plainly what the governor was doing when he forced the State Highway Commission last week to agree to consider an alternate routing of the new highway on or near an existing road along the Lake Michigan shore.

When the governor campaigned last fall, he took pains to include remarks about highway improvements, typically in discussions of the need for promoting economic development and to help manufacturing industries compete in a national market through more efficient transportation.

The Early Signs

But there were early signs that local politicians representing constituencies along the proposed route were hearing from them and that the public reaction thereabouts was distinctly cool.

Man, weeks ago, Rep. Vernon Boeckmann of Sheboygan County startled his colleagues by submitting a presumably routine amendment to the executive budget explicitly suggesting a prohibition of the route for the major new highway then generally expected to be chosen.

Perhaps to his own surprise, he got substantial support, in part because of the solid backing of the Milwaukee County delegation which reflected pressures from the city administration on housing and other dislocations that would result from the construction of the Milwaukee terminus of the new freeway.

But there was no sign that many persons outside the legislature were paying heed. The Highway Commission proceeded with its planning, although with a gesture toward the environmentalists in the form of a contract with University of Wisconsin ecologists for advisory service on a routing that would have least impact on the landscape and other natural values.

Long Delay

At best, the governor's insistence upon starting the planning process anew will mean that this major public works project will be delayed considerably. There is a real possibility that it will be killed.

As Chairman William Reardon of the Highway Commission has said, this is not the state's unilateral decision. Washington which provides most of the huge sums of money for such works will have the final word.

What is astonishing, in perspective is the picture of the chief politician of his state intervening against a project that at any other period in modern history would have been cheered as a great boon.

But these men on the top side of state politics (Sen. Gaylord Nelson up-staged his friend in the executive office by issuing the first demand for the veto of the new route) are probably reading public opinion accurately. Public opinion has shifted precipitately. No longer is there unquestioning acceptance of the idea that covering over more acres with thick slabs of concrete is a public boon.

Strictly Personal

Education Special, General Knowledge

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

We all pay lip-service to the idea of "knowledge," but we don't understand the most important thing about it. And that is the "negative" use to which it can be put.

One of the main purposes of "knowing" any subject really right to discuss fields that fall in the public interest, like politics, or psychology, or even housing and urban planning. Every intelligent and concerned citizen must take an interest in such matters, many of them are too important to be left to the specialists.

It does suggest, however, a little more modesty and a little less dogmatism in discussing them. It suggests that "common sense" is not enough equipment to bring these subjects, just as having a pair of ears is not enough equipment to bring to the full understanding of music. Only when we know what we do not know can we begin to learn something.

And the only way we can know that we do not know something is by comparing it with what we truly know. Someone with a smattering of information in a number of subjects, and no serious foundation in any one of them, may sound glib and plausible at cocktail parties, but lacks the essential respect for knowledge that makes his contribution worthwhile.

Whitehead said long ago that everybody should have general knowledge and special knowledge; general, because without it he is too narrow a specialist; and special, because without it he lacks the criteria for evaluating his opinions. Only the two together make an "education."

Pitcairn Island Population Falling

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A U.N. Secretariat paper on Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific says it has lost 70 people in a decade and now has only 80 descendants of the British sailors and Tahitians who settled there in 1793 after the Mutiny on the Bounty.

However, the paper adds, Norfolk Island far to the west has nearly 600 descendants of Pitcairn islanders.

Organization Fights For Single Taxpayers

BY SYLVIA PORTER
About 30 million taxpayers in the U.S. are single — the never-married, the widowed, the divorced. Increasingly angry about federal tax laws that force single persons to pay higher rates than married persons earning the same incomes, leaders of this group have formed a new organization to lobby to end discrimination against the unmarried. This nonpartisan, nonprofit organization is called COST (for Committee of Single Taxpayers), is based in Washington, D.C., and has as cochairman of its advisory board two former senators of widely differing political viewpoints: Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota and George Murphy of California. Here is how McCarthy and Murphy explain the problems of single taxpayers and what COST intends to do about them.

Q. How much more does a single taxpayer have to pay than a married person with the same income?
A. The penalty can be as high as 20 per cent. For instance, using the standard deduction, a married couple earning $10,000 in 1971 will pay $270 less than a single individual. At $20,000 the difference is $850. At $36,000, the difference is $1,950 in taxes.

Q. What reform legislation is pending now?
A. There are identical bills in both the House and Senate. The Senate bill, introduced by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut and the House bill, introduced by Rep. Edward Koch of New York, would treat single persons on the same basis as married couples for tax purposes. There are 133 cosponsors of the House bill and hearings are slated before the House Ways and Means Committee this fall.

Q. How do you rank the Tax Reform Act of 1969 on this question?
A. It didn't go far enough. It reduced the difference in tax rates between single and married persons: The differential used to be as high as 42 per cent. The reforms acknowledged that the old rates were confiscatory but they did not really tackle the essential unfairness of a system of separate tax rates.

Porter

Q. Where is the major inequity in today's system?
A. It is in the area of income-splitting — which has been part of our tax laws since 1948 and which got into our laws by accident — as a result of court rulings that dealt with taxing the earnings of families in community property states. To achieve some kind of uniformity, Congress wrote into law that all married couples filing joint returns could enjoy the benefits of income-splitting. This solved a problem for married couples, but it didn't touch the tax burden carried by single citizens. While it is often argued that income-splitting helps married couples through the costs of bringing up children, the truth is the law gives a couple this benefit whether or not they have children. A widower or divorcee with children to care for has no such tax benefit, even though his or her responsibilities may be equal to that of a married couple with children.

Q. What has been the response so far to COST?
A. We're getting letters from all over the country. A single woman in Ohio wrote that she found out how unjust the law was when a clerical error in her office listed her withholding tax under "married" and as a result her taxes were under-withheld to the point where she was hit by a big extra tax bite. A woman who is a physician in North Carolina wrote that she has contributed thousands to help educate young people but has never been able to claim a deduction. A bachelor professor in Maryland who lives in a house noted that he has virtually the same living expenses as a married couple next door. Another Marylander, with three children, wrote that his tax burden was grossly unjust because the "head of household" schedule does not properly recognize the responsibilities he obviously has.

Q. What does COST plan to do to achieve tax reforms?
A. To maintain a consistent and persistent pressure in Washington. The single taxpayer's voice has simply not been heard and so we will be that voice, before the committees of Congress and in other public forums. The tax laws have been adjusted to reflect the special problems of other persons who have made their voices heard on Capitol Hill. A group of 30 million Americans is a substantial part of our population and is entitled to tax equity. The right to petition is a basic right which all citizens have and we will make this our mission until we have achieved our goals.

A single woman in Ohio wrote that she found out how unjust the law was when a clerical error in her office listed her withholding tax under "married" and as a result her taxes were under-withheld to the point where she was hit by a big extra tax bite. A woman who is a physician in North Carolina wrote that she has contributed thousands to help educate young people but has never been able to claim a deduction. A bachelor professor in Maryland who lives in a house noted that he has virtually the same living expenses as a married couple next door. Another Marylander, with three children, wrote that his tax burden was grossly unjust because the "head of household" schedule does not properly recognize the responsibilities he obviously has.

Q. What does COST plan to do to achieve tax reforms?
A. To maintain a consistent and persistent pressure in Washington. The single taxpayer's voice has simply not been heard and so we will be that voice, before the committees of Congress and in other public forums. The tax laws have been adjusted to reflect the special problems of other persons who have made their voices heard on Capitol Hill. A group of 30 million Americans is a substantial part of our population and is entitled to tax equity. The right to petition is a basic right which all citizens have and we will make this our mission until we have achieved our goals.

Q. How do you rank the Tax Reform Act of 1969 on this question?
A. It didn't go far enough. It reduced the difference in tax rates between single and married persons: The differential used to be as high as 42 per cent. The reforms acknowledged that the old rates were confiscatory but they did not really tackle the essential unfairness of a system of separate tax rates.

Q. Where is the major inequity in today's system?
A. It is in the area of income-splitting — which has been part of our tax laws since 1948 and which got into our laws by accident — as a result of court rulings that dealt with taxing the earnings of families in community property states. To achieve some kind of uniformity, Congress wrote into law that all married couples filing joint returns could enjoy the benefits of income-splitting. This solved a problem for married couples, but it didn't touch the tax burden carried by single citizens. While it is often argued that income-splitting helps married couples through the costs of bringing up children, the truth is the law gives a couple this benefit whether or not they have children. A widower or divorcee with children to care for has no such tax benefit, even though his or her responsibilities may be equal to that of a married couple with children.

Q. What has been the response so far to COST?
A. We're getting letters from all over the country. A single woman in Ohio wrote that she found out how unjust the law was when a clerical error in her office listed her withholding tax under "married" and as a result her taxes were under-withheld to the point where she was hit by a big extra tax bite. To Your Good Health Salt Craving Is Habit That Should be Broken

BY G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our son, 18, craves salt at any time of day, with his meals and between meals. He puts it on everything, and even sprinkles it on his palm and eats it straight.

Can this be harmful to him? We thought he would probably grow out of it. — F.C.H.

This sort of problem is usually a matter of habit, just as some people develop a habit of dousing everything with ketchup or other seasonings.

About the only really physical cause of salt hunger that comes to mind is Addison's disease, a deficiency of the adrenal glands, but if that were the case here, you would have noticed other symptoms, too.

How or why people develop such an abnormal taste for salt, otherwise, I do not know, but they'll shake salt on everything they eat, even before tasting it, and get it so salty that other folks wouldn't eat it.

On a short-range basis, I don't know that this does any harm, but it's wise to start breaking the habit early, because later on it can become part of more serious problems — high blood pressure, for one, or congestive heart disease, or edema from any of several causes.

When some such condition as that develops, it may (and probably will) be urgent that salt be restricted drastically, and if somebody has become a confirmed salt-eater, it's difficult then to break the habit.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Kindly forward booklet on leg cramps; 25 cents and self-addressed, stamped envelope enclosed. Would you advise taking quinine sulfate capsules? — J.A.G.

Quinine in that form is one thing which quite often helps, but I emphasize in the booklet that other measures in addition are helpful and, unless you are lucky, you can't leave it all to the capsules.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I can't ask anyone but you about this. Last winter my husband took some LSD that a "friend" gave him. He had promised never to touch any drugs again, so I nearly divorced him, but I didn't and once more he promised "never again."

Later that month I got pregnant, but two months later I lost the baby. I have to know if drugs could have killed my baby. I want another baby very badly, but with his history of drugs of all kinds, I'm afraid to try. They say drugs can cause deformed babies, and I need some information. — Mrs. D.

One can't give you an absolute answer, no matter how much you "have" to know. You mention "drugs of all kinds."

Drugs are known to produce chromosome changes, and defective babies and spontaneous abortions have been reported although only the husbands were drug-users.

Whether this was so in your case is uncertain. Babies can be lost at two months from causes of the House bill and hearings are slated before the House Ways and Means Committee this fall.

My thought would be to wait two or three years and see if he stays off all drugs. If he doesn't, the baby even if healthy, would be brought into a family that would have problems.

If he keeps his promise, another pregnancy might go well, but I'd wait long enough to be pretty sure whether he really will stay away from drugs.

Note to Mrs. T.W.: No, lupus erythematosus is not contagious, but its cause is not known. Treatment with steroids is the most effective at present.

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble." It may be only minor, but it can be dangerous. Read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need To Know About Them."

Today's hand was played in a duplicate game against Mrs. Jasper Cramer, popular Miami bridge teacher. Mrs. Cramer selected the hand for use in her classes to demonstrate the importance of timing.

Your Problems Loving Husband to His Wife at Retirement

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I don't know who wrote this but it makes a lot of sense these days when one and more men are retiring — and getting on their wives' nerves. My copy says, "Sent in by Ruth Strait, Modesto, Calif." I hope you think it's worth printing. — Another Californian

Dearly Beloved: I'm coming home to live with you 14 hours a day. Something I've been looking forward to for 40 years. I didn't marry you so I could work. I worked so I could marry you — and I figure we've spent at least 100,000 hours apart because of my job. I hope to make amends in the years left to us.

I'm sorry I'm not the same handsome fellow in the wedding picture, with black, wavy hair and a waistline a belt could go around — and legs that could still chase you around the dining room table. But I do have a deeper appreciation for you and a better understanding of what marriage means. I owe you a great deal. You stood by me during some rough times. You never worried me with other men (not too much, that is) and you never spent more than I made. You put up with my peculiarities and you were nice to my nutty relatives.

I don't have many requests, but I do have a few. I was a fairly important man down at the office. Please don't make me a flunky at home. I don't mind doing some of the chores but don't ask me to do woman's work. And when your lady friends drift in and out of the house, don't ask me to play host. They come to see you, not me. And now that the kids are gone and we have two vacant bedrooms, will you please let me have one? Not to sleep in. I still want my place next to you in the old four-poster, but I'd like a room where I can throw my junk around, or take a nap, or just accumulate things. Give me these few privileges, dear, and a little time to adjust, and I'll be the finest fellow you ever retired with.

Devotedly, Your Loving Husband

Dear Husband: You sound like a pussycat. I hope your wife is smart enough to smile and say — "Yes, dear..."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've had my share of problems, but by the grace of God, and a marriage counselor who couldn't save our marriage, but helped me grow, I've come through my divorce a stronger and better person.

I am presently involved in a situation that has me half crazy with indecision. I've been seeing a divorced man who has six sons. I believe I am in love with him and have told friends that we might marry. The consensus is that I would be crazy to mix my three children (two boys and one girl) with his six (all boys). My mother tells me we would be fighting over children constantly.

I am not a child (I'm in my early 30's), and I realize no marriage is without problems, but I do love this man and I don't want to lose him if this thing with children can be worked out. What are the chances, Ann? I should tell you that his sons are well behaved and they seem to like me very much. Thanks for your help. — Teeter Totter

Dear Teeter: I see no reason why you could not have a successful marriage with a father of six boys provided you agree in advance on the ground rules: No favoritism, and no "do you know what your son did to my daughter" complaints. When the kids squabble (and you can bet your life they will) there must be no taking sides. Punishment should be swift, just, and equal.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The Secret Affair

BY ART BUCHWALD

(Many years ago Art Buchwald discovered you can have an affair and still keep your marriage intact. This is how it can be done.)

One of the problems of being married and having young children is that much of the romance goes out of people's lives. A friend of mine has solved the problem. Every week he has an "affair" with his wife.

What he does is he kisses his wife good-bye in the morning and goes off to work. About noon he calls her up and whispers, "This is George. Is your husband home?"

His wife replies, "No, the oaf has gone off to the office."

"I've got to see you this afternoon," the husband says. "I can't. I've got to be here when the children come home from school."

"Get one of the neighbors to take care of them. Tell them it's an emergency and you have to go into town."

"Do I dare?"

"Please, darling, we don't have much time together."

"I'm frightened."

"I love you."

"I'll come. Where shall we meet?"

"Somewhere where no one will recognize us. I'll pick you up on the corner of F and 14th Street, at 3 o'clock."

The wife arranges for the neighbors to take care of the children and gets dressed up in her prettiest suit. She then drives into town, parks two blocks away and waits on the corner.

Her husband pulls up. She glances around fast and then hops in. "I think I was seen, darling," she says nervously. "Relax," the husband says comfortably.

"There's a motel just across the bridge. We'll check in there."

"But we have no luggage," she protests.

"I'll check in. You stay in the car and then we'll drive to the room."

After they get into the room she laughs. "I didn't even bring a toothbrush."

"I thought about you all week," he says, kissing her. "So did I," she replies. "I waited for this moment. I thought it would never come."

"I wanted to call you, but I was afraid he would answer the phone."

"He wouldn't stop watching television to answer the phone. Does your wife know about us?"

"She's too busy taking care of the kids to know about anything. I told my secretary if she called to tell her I was out at a conference."

"How long can we go on like this?"

"Let's just be grateful for what we've got."

"If we'd only met each other before."

"I feel that way, too."

At 6 o'clock they check out of the motel, and my friend drops his wife off at F and 14th. "Until next week, my darling," he says as he kisses her.

"It will seem like a year," she says tearfully.

She hops out of the car without turning back.

An hour later her husband arrives home. "Anything happen today?" he asks casually, as he pecks her on the cheek.

"The same dull routine. Nothing happen with you?"

"No, just another crummy day," he yawns. They both smile inwardly and sit down to dinner.

Jewelry Drapes

More ways to drape a neckline with elegance are the longer necklaces falling to the waist from a high-up dog collar beginning; the fill-in necklaces that stop short for a "cravat" look.

Hours of Sleep Affect Growth

"Wanna grow up to be big and strong? Then you'd better get plenty of sleep."

This is the advice many parents urge upon youngsters to encourage them to adopt proper sleep habits. Now comes news from the medical world that parents who say this really know what they're talking about.

Sally Ames, sleep consultant to the Spring Air Mattress Company, reports that growth hormone is released in children during sleep. This fact was discovered by researchers at the University of Oklahoma's department of psychiatry and behavioral sciences.

"This news should be particularly welcome to parents who are anxious to have themselves and their children recover from the erratic habits that usually arise during summer vacation," Miss Ames said. "When back-to-school time comes, children may have a hard time adjusting to good habits."

Sleep authorities generally agree that most adults and older teen-agers should get at least eight hours sleep per night. Children under 10 may need ten hours' sleep, while pre-schoolers may require an afternoon nap as well.

"Some children look upon staying up late as 'grown up,' and so they resist the idea of getting to bed at a decent hour," the sleep expert said.

For such children, parents should make clear the importance of sleep for growth.

"You also can remind children, especially those who are sports-minded, that trainers and team physicians insist that high school and college athletes get nine hours sleep per night," Miss Ames said. "Few teen-age athletes can remain in top condition with less than this amount."

"While occasional short nights of sleep can be permitted — as at slumber parties, for instance — a string of such nights can be harmful to physical as well as to mental health.

"Everyone needs sleep, not just for physical restoration, but to maintain a normal dream cycle," Miss Ames said. "Studies show that when people don't dream enough,
